Colliery Company Secures Power Franchise Extension for Portion of Island

Authority Is Given To Supply Power Over Wide Section

Wellington Colliery Company Receives Franchise—Covers Territory Between Duncan and Courtenay, and Across to Alberni Canal

Puntledge Development Is Expected to Be Expanded

THE scope within which the Wellington Colliery Company, under its charter, may sell and distribute electric power has been extended by the Government so as to include the territory lying between Duncan and Courtenay, and across the island as far as Alberni. It is not likely that the company will enter into distribution of power over the territory, but it is anticipated that it will sell power in bulk under an arrangement either entered into, or about to be entered into with the Canadian Utilities, whereby the power generated by the Puntledge development will be made use of for the purpose of serving the communities that come within the scope of the company's operations.

REASONS FOR FRANCHISE

There had been reports to the effect that the Wellington Colliery Company might wish to go into the power line itself, supplementing the water power at Puntledge, if found economical to do so, by the use of the cheaper grades of coal mined in the generation of electric energy.

The latest reports seem to indicate that it is not the intention of the colliery company to proceed along that line, but that an arrangement may be entered into with the Canadian Utilities by which power may be taken in bulk, and the latter company will become the retailer of the energy as required within the area covered by the colliery company's new rights.

POTENTIAL DEVELOPMENT

The Puntledge power proposition is estimated to be capable of developing something like 22,400 horsepower.

The Wellington Colliery Company is interested directly in the extension of the development at the Puntledge as a means of affording that company the opportunity of avoiding the use of marketable coal for the production of electrical energy at the present time.

Rivals in Ontario Fight

WITH candidates named in both ridings of Oxford, the Ontario election campaign is now in a swarming up, or concentrating along party lines. David M. Ross, 1, Liberal-Progressive, won Oxford North in 1926 by nearly two thousand majority. He is opposed this year by John W. Sales, Conservative, 2. In the south riding James Pullin, 3, Conservative, is opposing R. A. Baxter, 4, Liberal. This seat was held in the last Legislature by T. M. Birkett, Conservative.

SAILORS ARE RESCUED OFF ROCKY ISLE

Twenty-Four Men, Marooned After Wreck of the Chicago, Picked Up by Coastguard Cutter

OTHER FLIGHT ARE ALSO IN SAFETY

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 26.—The dismal situation which Captain C. F. Parrell, of the Package freighter Chicago, and the majority of her crew has endured on the western end of Michipicoten Island since Tuesday night, when a gale drove the freighter aground, was ended today.

Wireless reports here said that the marooned men were taken from their rocky refuge about 100 miles northwest of here, on Lake Superior, this afternoon, by the coastguard cutter Seminole, and that no undue privation had been suffered by the men. When the coastguard cutter reached the island, eight of the original thirty-two men who left the Chicago when she went aground, had made their way to Quebec Harbor, a village where the only inhabitants of the island live.

The eight men at Quebec Harbor were picked up by the coastguard boat, No. 116, which accompanied the Seminole to complete the rescue. The rescuers and rescued tonight were en route here and were expected to reach harbor some time early tomorrow. Other details are lacking.

Bound from Duluth to Chicago, the Chicago, a 340-foot boat in the service of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation, was blown off her course last Tuesday night by a fifty-mile gale. The crew left the boat. All remained together until yesterday, when the first man of the thirty-two made his way to Quebec Harbor. Rough seas prevented rescue until today.

Curie, co-discoverer of radium, today dedicated the Hepburn Hall of Chemistry at St. Lawrence University, after having had bestowed upon her the honorary degree of doctor of science by the university's president, Dr. Richard Eddy Sykes.

Shadow of Next Appeal to Federal Electors Begins to Fall Across This Province

IN a Federal way indications look to an early testing at the polls. Both sides appear to rest satisfied that some time shortly after the conclusion of the Land Conference in Ottawa Canada there will be an appeal to the electorate.

The visit of the Premier of Canada, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to the Pacific Coast at this time, preceding the dissolution of the Parliament, has every indication that he is seeking to woo the electors fastest removed from the capital, preparatory to asking for a renewal of confidence in his ability to conduct the affairs of state.

He will be in Victoria on November 13, accompanied by Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence. The member of the Government from this province has paid repeated visits to British Columbia since Parliament rose, and there have been other ministers here, all indicative of consultation with respect to the situation that portends a desire to seek votes.

OPPOSITION ACTIVE

On the other hand, the Conservative party has likewise been giving indications that it is not allowing the pre-eminent position which it occupies in this province to be undermined by the other side. Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the party, spent several weeks this Summer travelling over the province, addressing meetings and associating with the people.

This is being followed up by the calling of the annual meeting of the provincial association in Kamloops with a special call for a good attendance of delegates so as to lay plans for the coming Federal election.

CANDIDATES CHOSEN

Already there is some little activity in the nominating of candidates. There is only one of the sitting members from British Columbia who is known positively to be returning from the field This is Geo. J. A. Clark, member for Burrard. The Conservatives have not nominated in his place, but the Liberals have selected Mr. W. F. Hanbury, of Vancouver, to contest the seat against the Conservative nominee.

In Nanaimo riding Mr. C. H. Dickie, the sitting member, is already nominated, and his former opponent, Mr. C. H. O'Halloran, is also in the field for the Liberals.

In Cariboo the Liberals have named Mr. H. G. Perry, of Prince George, as standard bearer.

Would Give Control For Reforesting to U.S. Federal States

A number of other important policies were indorsed by delegates to the convention, which closed yesterday.

ITALY'S IRE AT FRANCE IS IN FERMENT

ITALIAN PRESS IS IMMODERATE

Feared That Good Relations May Be Ruptured and Conference on Naval Matters Will Suffer

LONDON, Oct. 26.—British United Press.—The British authorities are watching with some anxiety the attack being made against France in the Italian press, following the attempt on the life of the Italian Crown Prince.

It is even suggested that naval conversations between Italy and France will be imperiled by the resentment felt throughout Italy against France. France is accused in Italian newspapers of abetting the man, Di Rosa, when he crossed the frontier without a passport, and giving him a police card which enabled him to leave Paris for Brussels.

Previous to this incident considerable friction had developed between Italy and France, which had cropped up when attempts were made by Italian residents in France on the lives of prominent Fascists, including Premier Mussolini. Italy has frequently demanded that the sheltering given by France to anti-Fascists must cease. Hitherto the French have refused that if they take steps to deport the anti-Fascists they will have to deport the entire Italian colony resident in France, while Sig. Mussolini certainly does not desire.

INTERMEDIATE QUESTION

One Italian newspaper asks bluntly if France wants war, but the majority of attacks on France, while bitter in tone, are more moderate in expression than this

PREPARE FOR NAVY PARLEY IN JANUARY

St. James' Palace Likely to Be Scene of Conference of Great Powers on Disarmament Problem

LARGE NUMBER TO BE ACCOMMODATED

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The eyes of the world will turn to London in the third week in January, when the five-power naval conference begins its labors. The exact scene of meetings, which will be historic, has not yet been decided on. Our location may, in spite of rumors to the contrary, be at once ruled. The sessions will not take place in the comfortable official residence of the Prime Minister in quiet little Downing Street, in which the Cabinet in No. 10, though it is officially its official residence, has to hold the assembled statesmen and their advisers, because of the meetings would disturb the normal family life of the Prime Minister.

The Foreign Office, just across the way from the Premier's house, is a possibility. If it is chosen, the sessions will be held in the Locarno room, a lavishly gilded apartment of good size, in which the Locarno pact was signed.

In this case, also, daily meetings would be arranged, and the Foreign Office can scarcely spare the interpreters and rooms which the delegates would require.

The most likely place for the conference is St. James Palace. In this largely uninhabited and dignified old place, once considered to be the ineligible London house of the Prince of Wales, though it is not in fact occupied by him, there are two or three large rooms which would serve for the main sessions of the conference, as well as a number of subsidiary apartments.

BEAVERBROOK EMPLOYEE ON PARTY TOPICS

Says Emphatically That Manifesto of Empire Party Will Spell Overthrow of Mr. Baldwin

GIVES HINT AS TO PROBABLE LEADER

VANCOUVER, Oct. 26.—International political developments in Great Britain, not generally foreseen in this country, were predicted by Mr. C. J. Ketchum, special foreign correspondent of the Beaverbrook newspapers, who has arrived in Vancouver after a coast-to-coast tour of the Dominion.

Mr. Ketchum brought with him the Beaverbrook Empire trade manifesto which is to be released in Britain and throughout the Empire next week, and in revealing its terms for publication here, declared with confidence that it was the document that would very shortly spell the overthrow of Mr. Baldwin from the leadership of the Conservative party.

"I said it in Montreal, and I say it again here in Vancouver," he asserted, "that the march of Lord Beaverbrook and his Empire party on Westminster is as relentless, and his arrival as inevitable, as was the march of Oliver Cromwell on London at the time of the Restoration. Conservative opinion in Great Britain, weary of the lethargic methods of Mr. Baldwin and his friends, is turning to the Beaverbrook policy as the only possible means of bringing about the early resuscitation of that historic party.

"And not only Conservatives, but men of all ranks and all parties are rallying to his support," he added. "Lord Melchett, formerly Sir Alfred Mond, and a Liberal, but now one of Britain's master industrialists, has placed himself unreservedly under his banner Sir Harry McGown, an eminent Conservative and world-known industrialist; Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, the Conservative tobacco king; Lord Waring, another Conservative chieftain of industry, are all behind him. Mr. Reginald McKenna, the famous banker and for-

PASSENGERS HAVE FORTUNATE ESCAPES

Ss. Princess Marguerite Collides With Princess Louise off Kellett Bluff in Early Morning Hours—Three Stateroons Are Demolished and Seven Others Damaged—Stories of Eyewitnesses

Considerable Injury Done To Both Ships in Impact

BEARING tales of miraculous escape from sudden death by the occupants of ten of her staterooms, the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Louise arrived in port at 9 o'clock yesterday morning following a collision with the Ss. Princess Marguerite off Kelleta Bluff, near San Juan Island, at 4:10 o'clock.

Proceeding from Vancouver to Victoria in hazy weather, the Princess Louise, in command of Capt. Nels J. Ritzrent, crossed the bow of the Princess Marguerite, and sustained a gaping hole twenty by thirty feet, about seventy-five feet from her stern on the starboard side, when the crash came. The Marguerite was bound from Seattle for Vancouver, in command of Capt. R. A. Hunter.

In a moment staterooms were reduced to masses of torn and twisted steel, passengers were thrown from their bunks and doors jammed fast as the knife like bow and lower anchor of the larger vessel ripped through plates with a force that heeled the Louise well over to port.

Three staterooms were completely demolished and but the occupants escaped death is a miracle. Seven others were considerably damaged as passengers within were thrown out of berths amid a shower of collapsing woodwork.

CALLED UPON DECK

Passengers were summoned on deck, many appearing in blankets over their night attire. Others were already dressed, not having been able to secure staterooms. When it was learned that the ship would be able to proceed, all went below, where coffee and toast were served to keep up flagging spirits, to steady nerves, or as a timely refreshment.

About one and a half miles off Brotchie Ledge, the Island Tug & Barge Company's tugs Respond and Island Comet, Captains R. Roskelly and A. Warren, arrived to assist the Princess Louise into the harbor as her steering gear was not functioning properly after the collision. She was tied up at 9 o'clock.

Helped out of the harbor in the afternoon by the Island Comet, the Louise arrived at Yarrows' Esquimalt plant at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Princess Marguerite lost up there one hour later, returning from Vancouver.

A preliminary survey of the Louise revealed that she was considerably damaged, although repairs will not necessitate her being drydocked. The inside force of the impact was SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Oct. 26.—For the first time since his long illness began, King George today partook of game he had shot himself. The game for his dinner tonight came from his first day of shooting, during which he bagged six brace of pheasants, a brace of partridges and a leash of hares.

FESTIVAL IS SHAPING FOR NEXT SPRING

Victoria Musical Festival Programme Is Issued, Including Many New Classes for Competitors

ADJUDICATORS ARE SELECTED

Progress has been made with the syllabus for the Victoria Musical Festival, May 6 to 10 (both dates inclusive) 1930, to the extent that its details are now ready for publication. A number of new classes have been introduced, as compared with 1929, including ten new ones for the pianoforte, a section for juvenile bands, expansion of the folk dancing section, a class for brass band quartettes, and similar features.

There are contests introduced for pianoforte accompaniment for a sold medal, competitions being required to accompany a soloist provided by the committee, the test piece to be chosen by the adjudicator, and for piano sight playing under nineteen years of age, competing for a silver medal.

The choice of the adjudicators at these festivals is always one of the most difficult to adjust, and upon their personal decisions depends the success of the gathering. Those chosen for 1930 are Dr. Healey Willan, Mus.D., F.R.C.O., Toronto; Mr. Ronald W. Gillett, of Winnipeg; Mr. David Campbell, of Portland, pianoforte diameter; Mr. John Webborne, of Winnipeg, string instrumental; Miss Rita Ravenscroft Sutton, director of the School of Speech,

Huge Sum to Aid Farmers Hold Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—A $100,000,000 fund today was placed at the disposal of the United States wheat farmers, to be loaned out by the Federal Farm Board through the newly-organized Farmers' National Grain Corporation.

The Farm Board, through its chairman, Alexander Legge, announced its plans for making immediately available the loan to aid the farmers who, Mr. Legge said, were at present selling too low a price for their grain. Under this plan the grain growers will be able to hold back their crop until prices were more satisfactory, in the meantime borrowing from the National Grain Corporation until they can meet their obligations.

Old Resident of Nanaimo Killed By Fall of Rock

NANAIMO, Oct. 26.—A tragedy occurred in No. 1 Mine this afternoon, when Mr. Alexander Rowan, of 403 Kennedy Street, was instantly killed by a falling rock, which struck him on the head and killed him unconscious.

Deceased was a native of Scotland and was fifty years of age. He leaves a family of three, namely his widow, one son, John, residing at home, two sons, Robert and James, residing at Lantzville, and Miss May, at home; also one brother, Mr. John V. Brownlie, Seattle; four sisters, Mrs. Charles Crafton and Mrs. Percy Kneen, California, and Mrs. H. Bale and Mrs. Kneen, city.

The late Mr. Rowan was a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church. He was also a member of Ashlar Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and a Knight of Pythias.

Coroner Hickling will hold an inquest Monday morning, at 10 o'clock, in the D. J. Jenkins jaycoom.

Fascists Will Celebrate Seventh Year Since March on Rome

ROME, Oct. 26.—The seventh anniversary of the new famous Fascist march on Rome which brought the Mussolini regime to power in Italy will be solemnly commemorated throughout the kingdom tomorrow. The Duce's desire to avoid the granting of needless holidays has caused the celebration to be brought forward one day, since the actual anniversary falls on Monday, October 28.

Tomorrow morning the Fascist volunteer militia will be assembled and passed in review in each of the ninety-two provinces of the realm. In every provincial centre an orator specially designated by the Fascist party directorate will hold forth to the crowds. This afternoon of Sunday will be devoted to the formal inauguration of all public works completed during the year—roads, bridges, model farms and hospitals, to give only a few examples.

Russia Will Soon Produce More Than U.S. Says Official

MOSCOW, Oct. 26.—Addressing a large group of American engineers, business men and journalists today, S. J. Kviringa, vice-chairman of the state commission of working out plans for the economic reconstruction of the Soviet Union, declared that the Soviet Union will soon surpass the United States in production. He added it would lead the entire world in that respect in comparison with pre-war production.

"During the last year our total capital investment in industry was 1,656,000,000 rubles, while during the coming year it will be 2,200,000,000 rubles. Of this, 2,000,000,000 rubles will be invested in so-called heavy industries, such as coal, iron, oil and metallurgical plants, and 500,000,000 rubles in light industries," he said.

Kviringa said that the Government's present five-year industrial situation plan, of which the first year already has been completed, calls for capital investment of 12,500,000,000 rubles, the funds for which will be derived from huge internal loans of 1,000,000,000 rubles yearly and from industry itself.

EXPERTS ARE DOUBTFUL ON NAVY PARLEY

Believe Not Sufficient Attention Has Been Given to Attitudes Taken by France and Italy

OVEROPTIMISM NOW PREVALENT

BY HENRY T. ROBBELL
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Reduction in the size of battleships as a result of naval disarmament negotiations and necessity for thorough preparations for the forthcoming five-power conference, were emphasized here today in studied comment on the conclusion of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's mission to the United States.

A tone of pessimism was injected into speculation on the January conference by various experts, who drew particular attention to the steadfast French and Italian opposition to abolition, or even severe limitation of submarines.

Even if an Anglo-American agreement has been reached on virtually

WEATHER FORECASTING

Subject Will Be Dealt With in Lecture to Royal Astronomical Society

The subject of weather forecasting will be discussed by Mr. F. Napier Denison, in a public lecture to be held at the Victoria College on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Denison, who is well known as the director of the Dominion Meteorological Observatory, will show how scientific observation in different parts of the country make it possible to predict the weather to be expected, even over comparatively long periods of time.

His own prediction of a dry season and a high fire hazard this Fall, made at a meeting of the Western Forestry Association, has been widely quoted, and Mr. Denison believes that further researches will make it possible to extend the accuracy and scope of such predictions. The probable causes of recent abnormal weather conditions, both in this country and in Europe, will be discussed.

The lecture, which will be illustrated by lantern slides, has been arranged by the local centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, of which Mr Denison is a former president. The chair will be taken by Mr. C. S. Beale, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. The meeting is an open one, to which the public will be welcome.

REUNION OF 47TH MEN IS BIG SUCCESS

LIEUT.-GOVERNOR AT CEREMONIES

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 26.—Five hundred men, survivors of the 47th Canadian Battalion, cheered His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Randolph Bruce as he welcomed the famous overseas battalion at their first reunion, which was held in the Armories here tonight, and which brought together veterans of the Great War from the Prairies, Oregon, Washington, Texas, Arizona and the Coast Province.

The affair was the first of its kind in connection with the 47th Battalion and was taken advantage of by the rank and file who received acquaintanceship and saw the films shown on the occasion of the training at Vernon and New Westminster.

Mayor Wells Gray, M.P.P., welcomed the veterans here this afternoon. He was mayor when the battalion returned from overseas in 1919 and therefore was well at home.

His Honor R. Randolph Bruce and his niece, Miss Helen Mackenzie, attended the ceremony at the Cenotaph and at the presentation of the 47th Battalion colors in Holy Trinity Cathedral.

One of the features of the evening was when Capt. T. S. Annandale, former paymaster and former mayor of Victoria, referred to the trip of Col. Cy Peck and other Y.C.'s to the Prince of Wales' dinner, on November 6. The Armories rocked with the cheers for the members of the Islands and other members of the Victoria party.

Others who took a prominent part in the proceedings included Major J. Mills, D.S.O., and Lieut.-Col. A. Leslie Coote.

ITALY'S IRE AT FRANCE IS IN FERMENT

"Does Prince Napoleon" the newspaper Impero asks, adding that "France must break up the beehive which it has tolerated and encouraged, so the Italians will disinfect themselves." The Giornale d'Italy says, "For her own defence Italy has a duty to do by France a categorical declaration that the protective tolerance hitherto given to anti-Fascist exiles on French territory has become one of the fundamental problems of Italian relations with France. It really seems as if France has no intention of regulating her debt of honor to the peace to Italy.

"We ask, therefore, this time does France intend to continue to spoon, as a movement whose aims she protected against the Italian state? Today no one can quibble any longer that it is not the friendship of two nations that is involved, but a clearing up of the Franco-Italian situation."

BRUSSELS, Oct. 26.—Fernando Di Rosa, Italian citizen who attempted to assassinate Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, here Thursday, was probably to be arraigned for trial in Italy, officials said today, after the departure of the prince for home.

It was pointed out that the crime was attempted in Belgium, and the assassin must be tried in a Belgian court.

Prior to the entertainment the Eagles Lodge will meet in regular session at 7 30 o'clock, and will be presided over by President J. E. Marsh. Candidates for initiation are asked to be in attendance at 6 o'clock.

realized when it was discovered that some of the woodwork on interior corridors was ripped open.

Damage to the Princess Marguerite included a badly bent propeller, about twenty-three plates bent and a broken hawser pipe, driven into her bow during the collision. It will be impossible to dock her in Victoria the new drydock until R.M.S. Empress of Canada is released early next month.

TENDERS CALLED

"Tenders for repairs to the Princess Louise will be called on Monday," said Captain Cyril Neurotsos, manager of the British Columbia Coast Service of the C.P.R., last evening. "The Louise is needed at present more than the Marguerite.

"So, Princess Kathleen will take over the Marguerite's run, while the Princess Alice will be used in place of the Kathleen. The Princess Norah will take over the Alice's run to Skagway, and there will be no interruption in any of our British Columbia Coast services through the accident," Captain Neurotsos concluded.

TERRIFIC SMASH

Mr. R. H. Wright, who was a passenger on Victoria on the Princess Louise when she was struck by the Princess Marguerite, said he was occupying a stateroom immediately behind one of those crushed ribs and was awakened by the shock of the impact, which he likened to a vessel crashing against a wharf in landing, and saw the Louise's bow other ship as she passed along the side of the Louise.

The blow was evidently a glancing one, tearing away the plates for the length of four staterooms, for, as about forty feet in all, along the starboard side aft of the midship section, and piling splinters and debris over the occupants of the berths, asleep at the time of the accident. Looking at the wreckage immediately after, Mr. Wright thought that the escape of those occupying the staterooms had been most miraculous.

He was of the opinion that, while there was no fog in the vicinity of the accident, two miles from the occurrence, both ships had been proceeding cautiously through the visibility limits of fog and came in sight of each other suddenly. The Princess Louise evidently being in the act of backing away when collided with. There was an entire absence of panic among the passengers, the women being equally as composed as the men, even those who had been most in danger showing no traces of excitement, while the captain and the crew had the situation well in hand almost immediately. Those occupying the shattered staterooms had to get out in a hurry, leaving their clothes behind, and appeared in blankets and nightdresses for a few moments until their clothes were secured.

NO EXCITEMENT

"Had I not been a passenger and merely told such a thing could happen without any show of excitement, I could hardly credit it; in fact, I am surprised at my own attitude to the situation," he said.

"Shortly after the crash, there were several vessels close by—the Marguerite, a freighter and a tug. The Marguerite proceeded to Vancouver when her captain saw that the Louise had not been damaged below the water line, and our ship came on to Victoria under her own steam, although the steering gear had been put out of business, control being maintained from the steering wheel aft. Off the mouth of Victoria harbor two tugs came alongside and assisted her to the dock," Mr. Wright concluded.

HAZY WEATHER

"There was no panic, most of the passengers thinking that the Princess Louise had struck a rock," said the occupant of stateroom No. 238, next to those that were smashed. He refused to give his name, but volunteered an account of what happened.

"It was a hazy sea at 4.10 o'clock when the collision occurred, and I can distinctly remember three separate crashes as the bow of the Princess Marguerite passed down the starboard side of the Louise. Many of the passengers rushed upon deck in blankets over their night attire; few managed to don clothing.

"Although I did not personally see it, I heard later that three passengers tried to jump overboard, but were prevented by members of the crew. Many of those rushed on deck fully clothed; were passengers who had failed to secure berths.

"Shortly after the crash, Captain Hunter of the Louise, shouted to Captain Hunter of the Princess Marguerite through a megaphone, that his ship would be able to proceed safely to Victoria. This certainly reasured us that we were in no danger. Several of the crew were had to be chopped open with axes before their occupants could be released.

"After two members of the crew had broken into one man's stateroom they found him peacefully sleeping. After they shook him awake he calmly asked if the ship was on the top of Grouse Mountain. One passenger on deck added a touch of humor to the grave situation by donning three life preservers.

STEERING DIFFICULT

"About 7 o'clock we neared Victoria and noticed two tugs steaming to escort us into the harbor. Difficulty was encountered in steering the Louise, and the auxiliary wheel upon deck had to be used. All water was turned off after the collision, so most of us men presented an unshaven appearance when we stepped off the boat here," the passenger ended.

Possibly the best account of the accident was given by Lazy Branch, secretary of the Victoria Pleasure and Rodeo Association, who was awake at the time of the crash and half an hour previous had been upon the deck for a smoke.

"I would set the visibility at about 300 yards before the fog-horn the accident," said Mr. Branch. "It was hazy, but the sun was out and we could clearly see the moon. I could not sleep while on the way from Vancouver to Victoria, so dressed and went upon deck for a smoke about half an hour before the accident.

"Returning to my stateroom I sat down beside my berth, thinking that the ship was closer to port. At this time I estimated that we were proceeding at half speed. A matter of a few seconds before 4.10 o'clock in the morning there was a sudden tremendous shaking as the Princess Louise's engines were thrown in reverse.

"Then there were three short blasts of the vessel's whistle, a heavy crash and scores of plates and woodwork being ripped asunder. At the time I thought that we ran upon some rock," Mr. Branch continued.

CHINESE NERVOUS

"Two minutes after the crash, by my watch, a steward knocked upon the door of my stateroom, shouting, 'Everybody on deck!' Now, I do not like I rushed outside, wondering if I was dreaming or not, and if I should have donned a life-preserver. There was quite a panic among the Chinese aboard, although the white passengers seemed quite composed, as they found their way to the top deck in their clothes.

"Arriving on the boat deck in the chilly wind, we saw a stateroom and a few members of the Louise's crew They were not stationed at the boats but were attempting to make to swing them out. A broken steam pipe on the main deck was throwing clouds of vapor on the starboard side of the ship," said Mr. Branch.

"The steerageess was more help than anyone fetching blankets for the women and assuring all that there was no immediate danger. I carefully admired her coolness in a time of great mental stress.

"On the port side of the Louise a small tug was standing by, her skipper notifying Captain Sterner that he was ready in case help was needed. My cabin was thirty feet from the centre of the impact of the Princess Marguerite's bow, so you can imagine that I felt some of its force as the Louise rolled over to port," Mr. Branch said.

Speaking to one of the passengers who was on the promenade deck, I learned that he saw the bow of the Princess Marguerite about three minutes before the ships collided. He was holding on to the rail at the time of impact and after the terrifying moment was over, noticed a big piece of steel lying near his feet.

CABINS WRECKED

"Later on I found that ten cabins were wrecked in the collision, two of them being absolutely telescoped by the bow of the Marguerite. The passengers were thankful for. We proceeded to Victoria at one-quarter speed when we were about three and one and one-half miles off Brotchie Ledge by two island Tug & Barge Company's tugs, the crew placed pieces of canvas over the gaping hole in the Louise's starboard side," concluded Mr. Branch.

mer Lloyd George, though a free trader, is a conditional supporter; while even in the Socialist ranks there are men as distinguished as Mr. Ben Tillett, the renowned trade unionist leader, who have come out helus-bolus in favor of the cause.

"The campaign is, of course, sweeping the country," continued Mr. Kricthun. "It has seized the imagination of the British people as no public policy or political platform has done for a great many years. They see in it a new hope, and in its realization, an era of prosperity unprecedented in the history of Great Britain.

"Whether Lord Beaverbrook will actually take to land this new party of his own creation, I do not know. I am not in his confidence, but there are leaders of public opinion in the British Isles, men high in the councils of the Conservative party who believe that he should assume this responsibility, and that his moment has arrived."

With insufficient power to use the cheaper grades of coal to keep the engines running, it is said that the company would welcome sufficient electrical energy to be developed at Nanaimo, so that electrification might be utilized by the colliery in connection with the operations rather than have to use high grade coal for generating power.

COMPANIES CO-OPERATE

In any event there was no antagonism between the Canadian Utilities and the colliery company in connection with the application. The Canadian Utilities, in fact, supported the request of the colliery company.

The Canadian Utilities have power franchises in Duncan and Nanaimo. These have been acquired from other operators of the supply within recent dates. There is no announcement from the company as yet with regard to what will be done in the matter of carrying out the extension of the lines, as the recent order of the Government will allow to be done.

The Wellington Colliery Company is a subsidiary of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir), Limited.

EXPERTS ARE DOUBTFUL ON NAVY PARLEY

all points prior to the opening of the conference, these experts ask if the world powers already have forgotten the so-called "Lesson of the Geneva Tri-Partite."

BLAME GENEVA FAILURE

Many sources blamed the Geneva failure on inadequate preparation, principally the irreconcilable differences between American and British naval experts.

President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald apparently have determined to prevent a repetition of that failure by the preliminary Anglo-American accord, but, more deliberate consideration of recent developments has prompted some observers to stress the belief that the high hopes of world disarmament probably have been unduly raised by a "mass of oversoptimistic publicity." This is principally due to the present lack of agreement between Italy and France.

It is pointed out that a great part of the public has become convinced that, if Britain and the United States agree, the world will be saved. Well-informed persons, however, have begun to feel less optimistic, some of them expressing doubts as to the wisdom of limiting preliminary conversations to the two chief naval powers.

Some present diplomatic negotiations started between Italy and France, and secretly between Italy, France and Japan and the United States and Britain will help to overcome difficulties of the five-power conference and the success of these negotiations probably will determine the final outcome of the conference.

SIZE OF BATTLESHIPS

British observers are convinced that, if the difference of France and Italy can be overcome, and a five-power agreement reached, it will be possible to reduce the size of battleships. The proposed limit of 35,000 tons.

But other naval experts predict reduction to 10,000 tons—the size of the large destroyer—but few authorities have received that suggestion favorably. As a general rule, British naval opinion has favored keeping a fleet of capital ships which would be the "gold reserve" of the navy.

In the 10,000-ton ship it would be impossible to spare enough weight to permit sufficient armor for protection against modern guns. The German 10,000-ton pocket battleship Ersatz Preussen, has a remarkable measure of protection, but the ship would have many disadvantages for Britain, which needs long cruising range for protection of colonial trade routes.

FRANCE AND ITALY

PARIS, Oct. 26.—It is learned in responsible circles that France is disposed and ready to negotiate a preliminary agreement with Italy to prevent any naval armament race between themselves. Such an arrangement, it is understood, must, however, be based on recognition of France's necessity of defending extensive coast and distant colonies, justifying a bigger fleet for France than for Italy. France is described as ready to discuss the question of a reasonable proportion between the two nations but is quite unwilling to accept naval parity.

Although France is at the Washington Conference accepted the same ratio as Italy for battleships, it is declared France does not regard this as a precedent for cruisers and submarines inasmuch as neither France nor Italy is particularly interested in battleships but in smaller warships, especially in light cruisers.

A French spokesman affirmed that France earnestly seeks an agreement with Italy as the best insurance of success of the London conference and consequently of the general Lesbe by two island Tug & Barge Company's tugs, the crew placed pieces of canvas over the gaping hole in the Louise's starboard side," concluded Mr. Branch.

TRUTH ABOUT SITUATION IN FAR EAST

Col. Fred. Palmer, Noted War Correspondent and Author, Arrives After Tour of Orient

CHINA'S TRADE IS EXPANDING

In His Opinion the English-Speaking Nations Must Unite to Maintain the "Open Door" in Orient

"The far call of the East may become a near call in a vital decision for the English-speaking people at the coming Arms Conference," said Colonel Frederic Palmer, who arrived at Victoria on the Empress of Russia yesterday, after revisiting the East for the first time in twenty-five years. He was a correspondent in the Philippine Rebellion, on the Allied march to the relief of the Peking Legation in 1900, and with the Japanese Army in the Russo-Japanese War, 1904-05.

"In my swing through Japan, Korea, Manchuria and China to the Philippines, the amazing change to me was the growth of Japan's industrial and military power. She has nearly five million men who have had military drill. Her naval programme in face of all talk to the contrary, makes her plan of defence the offensive in distant waters. She could take the Philippines in two weeks. Each in her present cruiser strength that she could sweep the United States merchant flag off the Pacific by commerce-destroying raids. The Britain might suffer the same fate if Britain should have her naval movement through the Mediterranean interrupted.

"This is a sheer statement of facts, when not propagandic fulminations has passed. These are the facts to be coolly considered at the Arms Conference. Japan's Minister of the Navy will have the final say for her delegation. Hermann always be an admiral on the agitre Bat.

INFLUENCE IN KOREA

"In spite of Japan's home pressure of population, increasing at the rate of a million a year, there are now 500,000 Japanese in Korea, where she is an arbitrary colonial ruler; and only 300,000 in Manchuria, where her position is that of rail road control and industrial exploitation in a masterful imperial organization. Her farmers fail to migrate to the northern island of Hokaido, which could support ten million more people; and to the fertile valley of the northern Manchuria, into which the Chinese are pouring at the rate of a million a year; and which could support twenty million more people.

"Japan's budget economies never include the army and navy. She spends $1,000,000 a year on secret service and propaganda abroad. The school of thought which held in 1914 that Germany had not the money and resources to hold out for a year may be reminded that Japan has coal and iron in Manchuria that Manchuria is a grain area which will supply her with ample foodstuffs and that she has great reserves of oil in storage for her navy as well, the product of her wells in Saghalien. Her previous wars have yielded rich territorial gains.

COMMON POLICY NEEDED

"Her school of thought, for a long time, form a barrier between the Pacific and the coast of Asia, where Hong Kong, Singapore and the Philippines are the Occidental's sentinels, whose loss means that the West is out of the East, the end of the 'open door' Regardless of sentiment or ties of blood and language, the English-speaking peoples from the British Isles through the United States and Canada to Australasia, have a common sea interest which would make for a common policy in the Far East. Britain has not too much cruiser strength, and the United States should have an equal moment in sharing overhead to insure peace in the Pacific. Our failure to decide on any policy about the Philippines may one day leave us the alternative of suffering humiliation to our national pride or that of a fifty billion dollar war, not to mention that those of us who have seen, although we are past middle age, realize the blood cost.

"The sniping Sino-Russian warfare in northern Manchuria spread from a quarrel over the profits of the Chinese Eastern Railroad between the Russian Soviet and Chung-Hsueh-liang, war lord of Manchuria, while the Nanking Chinese Government, lacking control over Manchuria, has been making gestures to indicate that it has. It will be a long time before China became a republic except in name. She has 2,000,000 regular arms. Demobilization means that soldiers turn to banditry. Various generals who are war lords of provincial fiefs strive to extend their power at the expense of the Nationalist Government. The practical solution is that a strong leader will achieve supreme military control, insuring order. Meanwhile some schools and roads are being built, and modernization proceeds in a patchy fashion in the midst of disorder. Meanwhile trade conditions are hopeless as a prospect of the future great market, should stabilization and westernization become widespread. The abolition of extraterritoriality at this phase would be a handicap to reconstruction and mean the practical confiscation of the foreign property in China within five years.

PLACE OF MISSIONARIES

"The question is if the time has not come for the missionaries to retire from China. All the Chinese have now heard the gospel. All mission schools are now by Chinese law under Chinese direction. Anyhow, it would be a great idea to have an investigation of the actual results from mission funds spent in the Orient made by a commission of expert business men and expert educators, not in the missions, or in the pay of the Chinese government."

Colonel Palmer spent three months in the Far East on his present tour, and is proceeding to Washington immediately, traveling a portion of the way by Canadian Pacific Railway.

ORIENTALS PAY $301 IN FINES

Forty-One Chinese Fined Guilty in City Police Raid on Being Inmates of a Gaming House

A total of $301 was contributed to the city police exchequer yesterday by forty-one Chinese, who pleaded guilty at the court session through their counsel, Mr. William C. Morse, K.C., to charges of being found in a common gaming house located in a set of rooms on the second story of Nos. 1 and 3, west side of Pan Tan Alley.

Chief of Police John Pry stated that in company with other police officers he raided the Pan Tan Alley premises on Friday night at 9.45 o'clock, and found gambling in progress. There were four fan tan tables in the gambling room, and in rooms adjoining there was a considerable quantity of lottery tickets. No money was found, he stated.

Mr. Moresby, defence counsel, asked that a special reduction in the usual fine be made in the case of nine of the Orientals, who he said, had not taken part in the gambling, but had gone to the premises to seek warmth. They are aged men, and were in need of shelter.

Magistrate Jay fined thirty-two of the Chinese the sum of $8 each, and allowed the other nine to be released upon payment of fines of $5 each.

Joe Hon was convicted on a charge of selling firecrackers to two minors at his store, 1436 Government Street, on October 26, and was fined $5 and $2.50 costs.

A fine of $5 was imposed on William C. Oelling, who pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to bring his automobile to a full stop upon entering an arterial highway.

SCHOOLBOYS HAVE 'HOBBY' BUILDING

Great English Headmaster's Successful Idea Now Adopted in America City

The work of the great English headmaster, P. W. Sanderson, of Oundle in turning his talents for a development about to be undertaken by the high school at Portstown, Pa., under the direction of its headmaster, James I. Wendell. The centre of this development, recently announced by the trustees of the school, will be a general science and "hobby" building, which it is proposed to erect at a cost estimated cost of $300,000.

Under the roof of this building there will be collected the laboratory apparatus, the machines and the tools which delight the heart of the boy who has a taste for more than mechanical or scientific. Ample physical and chemistry laboratories will be located here for use in connection with the regular courses in these subjects, but the fundamental purpose of the building will be to offer opportunities for work in natural science other than that prescribed in the curriculum for college preparation. Here, as a boy opens the door, he will see a group of friends at work in the machine shop, others engaged, possibly in building a boat, still others trying to find out the fundamentals of aerodynamics by means of models of their own manufacture. From different parts of the building will come the sound of hammers and saws, the hum of wood and metal lathes.

GOOD USE OF LEISURE

It is hoped that this hobby building will stimulate the creative activity of boys by offering them a great variety of interesting things to do. Specifically, one object of the school in drawing up plans for the project is to solve the problem of keeping boys interested in their school life during their spare time. During bad weather, for example, the opportunities for interesting work such as the proposed building will offer will be especially valuable.

The success of Sanderson in his work at Oundle, where every stimulus to creative activity was offered in a similar large building called the science "block" has been, admittedly, the chief influence in the new development at The Hill. As at Oundle, the natural science library which the new building will contain will could will be divided into bays, one for each subject, and emphasis will be laid on the use of the library as a research laboratory, to which individuals or groups may go to obtain information on problems arising during the course of scientific experiments and other construction enterprises. The stress which Sanderson laid on the value of original work in drawing will also be reflected in a room where boys will find drawing and painting materials, pictures, models, color charts, elementary text-books and the like. Every boy, it is felt at The Hill, should be encouraged to draw, whether or not he displays from the beginning an unusual aptitude for the fine arts.

WITHOUT REGARD TO MARKS

The guidance of competent instructors will be necessary for the success of the new project, Mr. Wendell points out, but every boy will be made to understand that the teacher's function is simply to guide—not to show how things must be done, but to help the students find that out for themselves, and to indicate where there is room for the improvement of the work done. The whole value of this hobby building is believed, will lie in the stimulation of a boy's natural impulse to accomplish something which he undertakes on his own initiative and carries to a conclusion by his own efforts, without regard to marks or to his competitive standing in the class.

STORM AFTER CALM

Not, so far as we know, notwithstanding strict adherence to the principles of "open diplomacy," did a single ill-timed word or disagreeable circumstance mar the pleasure of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's holiday in the United States and Canada. All the associations were pleasant and all the "conversations" agreeable. All criticism was disarmed and all prejudice to the disarmament of nations. But we fear the Prime Minister will find that when he crossed the Atlantic and landed on the other side, he left the truce behind him, as Little Bopeep's lost sheep left their tails behind them.

It seems to be easier to establish peace throughout a naturally militant world than to establish and maintain peace within the political domestic circle. There are so many cackling political chickens that will insist upon "coming home to roost" at inconvenient seasons.

In America there was no Parliament to meet and explain things to. Parliament will be in session when Mr. MacDonald arrives home to find that Parliament there will be the political party led by Mr. Baldwin, and while the leader of that party is neither curious nor inquisitive there are some of the members of the party who will be curious about the alleged surrender of the Government to the Soviets, the undoubted surrender to the agitators in Egypt, the proposed surrender to the agitators of India and the increase of unemployment at home.

Mr. Lloyd George, leader of another section of the official opposition, is naturally extremely inquisitorial. Yet he has promised not to do anything likely to cause the Prime Minister discomfort. In fact, the leaders of the major Opposition parties have said that they will deal amicably with the Government and give it an opportunity to display the qualities of its statesmanship.

But there is another political element more to be dreaded than the official oppositions. That is the insurgent element in the Prime Minister's own party, the element with which he was intimately allied before the responsibilities of office compelled severance of the connection. The political "slogan" of the Independent Labor Party is "Socialism in our own time." That "slogan" apparently is destined to remain nothing more than a "slogan" for a long time. Mr. MacDonald may be asked to explain the reason why, and he may find some difficulty in giving a satisfactory explanation.

PRINCIPLES AND EXPEDIENCES

Whatever its backslidings and periods of weakness in the past, The Manitoba Free Press is a very zealous Liberal organ now. There was a time in the history of our Prairie contemporary when no student of the course of political events in Canada knew whether it was advocating the cause of the Progressives or labouring to establish a Bolshevist political party. Some of the cerals of Canada could not understand it. Probably it could not understand itself.

There is no doubt respecting the position of The Free Press now. Its position is on the pen- tent bench, and seeking to redeem itself from the error of his ways his enthusiasm is only exceeded by the zeal of an apostate. There are two principals which appear clear to the sometimes erring heart of the Prairie apostle of Liberalism. One is Free Trade with capital imitals. The other is Free Speech with capital imitals.

Free Trade is practically dead even on the Prairies, and is no longer spelled with big initial letters. The grain growers drove a nail in the coffin of free trade with capital imitals when they declared that trade in wheat was no longer free but must be regulated by arbitrary measures. For a long time The Free Press was stricken dumb as it contemplated the action of the grain growers in adopting the principle of Protection. But the paper has recovered from its state of partial mental paralysis, and is now defending the principle of protection, although it does not use the unmentionable word Protection either with a small or a big "p."

Free Trade being dead and buried, and therefore beyond resurrection and redemption, The Free Press has discovered another sacred Liberal principle that is being assailed and is in danger and must be defended even to the last ditch. That menaced Liberal principle is Free Speech, also for the present spelled with capital imitals. The Tory police of Toronto are preventing representatives of the Third International from opening their mouths and saying the thing they will in city parks and other public places.

Some of the Communists and other Red Flag-gers of Toronto who want to make speeches in public places and inflame the hearts of the people against existing and established institutions are nominally running as candidates against the Provincial Government of Premier Ferguson; but of course that fact has nothing whatever to do with the alarm of The Free Press. Principles, not politics, are at the root of the matter.

At the same time, the fact remains that Ontario is a centre of Conservatism in Canada, and Toronto is the heart of that conservatism.

No one in Canada, with possibly the exception of the editors of The Winnipeg Free Press and The Toronto Star, believes for a moment that the Toronto police were actuated by political motives when they prevented the advocates of violent revolutionary measures from addressing meetings in the parks and public places. It is the duty of the police to maintain law and order within the precincts of the city. If authority believes that riots and bloodshed may be prevented by the adoption of measures of precaution, it is the duty of the police to act on the instructions of authority and take the required precautionary measures.

There is incendiarism of word as well as of deed, and one may be quite as unlawful and dangerous as the other. Winnipeg had an instructive example to that effect not very many years ago. Free Speech ran riot there to the point of incendiarism. A general strike was begun after much violent declamation. The sacred principle of Free Speech, as advocated by The Free Press then as now, was permitted to run riot until it achieved its end. The strike had to be suppressed by extreme measures. The period of lawlessness proved costly to the city and to the Federal Government.

The employees of the postoffice joined in the general strike. The Government has just settled a claim of the strikers for pay during the time they were on strike, a claim which The Free Press at one time declared was without justification. But The Free Press probably took a stand on principle then, and it probably will take a different stand upon political expediency now.

POSSIBILITIES IN ONTARIO

There is a peculiar but very natural quality manifest in all political leaders on the eve of a general election. We here never heard of one leader yet at times thus addressed, "Thou art not sure of victory." The circumstances of Mr. Sinclair, the Opposition leader in Ontario, do not appear to be encouraging, but the leader of what appears to be a really forlorn hope professes to believe that after the election he will be summoned to form a government. Right Conservative candidates have already been elected. There are seventeen other constituencies in which no Liberal candidates have been nominated.

But then there are four Labor representatives and six Communists in the field as well as seven independent Conservatives, and it may be that Mr. Sinclair hopes to enlist all the political insurgents and incendiaries under his banner and accommodating banner and lead them in battle array against the forces of Premier Ferguson. If Mr. Sinclair hopes for sustenance from the bombs the militant disciples of Lenin carry, he is surely doomed to disappointment, for the candidates are duds and the bombs are duds as well.

Anyone who takes a deep interest in politics will find by investigation that there are many interesting features in the Ontario campaign now drawing to a close in addition to the features already mentioned. The situation in Toronto furnishes an illustration of the self-sacrificing principles so characteristic of the Liberals of Ontario. But two candidates have been nominated by the Liberals of Toronto—and they are both women, and leaders of a very forlorn hope, for it is a considerable time since a Liberal won a Toronto seat. Like the American Democrats, the Liberals of Toronto are willing to sacrifice all their women folk for the advancement of the sacred cause. The joke would be on the Tory men if the bold women lost, but in losing qualified for seats in the Senate. Politics is sometimes a very subtle game.

While the agents of Bolvietism in Canada are shouting vociferously for freedom of speech and the Liberals of Canada are vociferously supporting these demands, the agents of Bolvietism in Russia are executing men and women in dozens for daring to indulge in freedom of speech. As one authority puts the case: "Russia is thorough."

After speculation passes a certain ascertainable point, it becomes a vice. The "flutter" in stocks has caused some deaths, will cause a great deal of privation and much unhappiness. Why not extend the principle of Prohibition and make speculation unlawful?

TRAILS

He leaves his silver trail behind,
But has not silver on his way.
His path is rough, and sometimes dark.
And troubles come by night and day;
Slowly he moves, with bowed head—
And never sees his silver trail.

So, men who give us golden lives
Leave behind them the broad silver trail;
Time never turns a thought to gold,
Unless a man has made it well.
They suffer—like those humble snails—
And never see their golden trails.

AN UNFORTUNATE CLASH

Sir,—That a deliberate attempt is being made to belittle the deeds of one great cause by launching a strong campaign on behalf of another cause that justly demands a very real and active sympathy, must strike every man who is thinking through not having all the facts made plain.

From year to year, since that memorable hour when at 11 o'clock on 11-11-18 the Armistice was signed—a general appeal has been made throughout the Empire for funds for the aid of those who were amongst ex-service men, and yet, by your paper of Friday, we learn that an appeal is being launched for $50,000 for the Canadian Institutional Institute for the Blind, to be intensively carried out the week before and ending on the eve of Armistice.

Excessive pain, sorrow and horror are at times like the blow from a bludgeon on the skull, producing a numbness and paralysing effect. There is no limit to human sympathy, but there is a very definite limit to its human expression. I know I do not malign the sympathetic of Victoria, when I say that they feel very keenly that they should be called upon to express their sympathy for the Canadian blind at much time, when their heartstrings are vibrating with the deepest chords of sympathy and heavy memories of that first Armistice Day.

That very gallant Christian scholar, doctor and poet, John McRae, who yielded up his life at No. 2 Canadian General Hospital (Mobile), doing his best for the human wrecks from Flanders, left us his priceless and immortal ode, "In Flanders Fields," where poppies grow, a wondrous emblem of sacrifice.

We have not yet grasped the greatness of that sacrifice, for only year the effects of that excessive pain, sorrow and horror have been more clearly seen and felt in many hamlets. The bludgeoning effect is seen in increasing numbers of the permanently disabled, the destitution ex-soldiers of the C.E.F.

Now your mind carry you to the expression on the face of one, who, in face when he recovered in the dugout after the explosion of a shell, when all the rest were killed? Turn to the poem of Dr. John McRae, remember the young lad who, twenty-four hours after the battle, sought his chum and found him with his head and arms all gone, but still alive, and carried him a long way by himself and brought him to the dressing station, still living, and then stood and gazed on the mutilated hair of his chum as he passed beyond the veil. Then turn out and helped to dig his grave, made plain by the design of his sorrow? I wonder what he is like now? And thousands of others have felt and acted, and still act, as that young soldier acted then.

I trust, sir, that the Canadian National Institute for the Blind will not suffer, but it is unfortunate that time should come for help at such a time, already sacred to the Empire, Dominion and Empire.

As long ago as the terrible explosion at Halifax, when so many children lost the personnel of the hospital ship Araguya, under the auspices of its nurses and military officers of the ship, expressed their sympathy by giving an entertainment for the Institute of the Blind. I then directed by Sir A. Pearson, presented the institute with several thousand dollars.

Veterans have never had anything but the profoundest sympathy for the sufferers. But Armistice surely is the time for consolidating the seeds of war sufferers. This is the first time since the Armistice that I know that there has been any appeal for funds for anything but our ex-service men and their dependents.

We remember General Sir Arthur Currie's words, that the backbone and chaser of our Dominion must be indomitable Canadian Soldiers and wheresfuness such as that shown by Canada's sons and daughters on the Front.

Do not let us forget our comrades either; those who made the great sacrifice on land and sea and those struggling in the battle of today. Let us do our best and help them with dollars and cents, until it hurts.

WILLIAM BARTON,
Major, Chaplain Service (C.E.F.), "Dogwood Drive", R.M.D. 1, Royal Oak, Saanich, B.C. Oct. 26, 1929.

THE FIRSTBORN

Sir,—In spending a few days in Victoria, I have been very much interested in the reading of the letters in your paper about "the firstborn" of the province.

I was particularly interested in the letter of Mr. J. A. Mitchell, who he took up the cause of many like myself, who, because there is no live blood in our veins, have felt rather "out of the picture." I am one of those that have placed on the word "white" in this argument, which has appeared every now and again for a number of years.

Mr. Thomas Deasy said in his letter that an eight was intended, I know that Mr. Deasy, whose long service in Victoria dates back to my boyhood days, dating from the days of the founding of New Westminster by the Royal Engineers, of which he was body in his prime, I know he would not purposely slight any one, even in spite of this I think that he will be generous enough to admit with me that if we of mixed blood are not to be classed as "white," then we must be classed as "Indian," for there is not a drop of Indian in my veins, which is from the line of rulers of the Cowichan people; I am equally proud of my white ancestry in old Quebec and France.

The letter of Mary H. Ralfson in answer to Mr. McKelvie gives a different complexion to the argument, for she says it appears that the matter in dispute is not as to "the first child—white or part white—born in the territory, but the first under a political charge."

May I correct the lady in one statement she makes? It is that Fort Langley was in New Caledonia. It was not. I was born at Fort Langley eighty-one years ago, and my father came there from Fort Vancouver in 1846, being for a

OUR DRINK BILL

Sir,—Prominently reported, we read, "Canada drinks $168,814,458 in one year." United Church Witness concern prove increased consumption. Mr. J. J. McLaughlin says that apart from the greater economic and moral issues involved in attracting the attention of the building.

Let us view this question from an economic standpoint. Drinking $168,814,458 our Federal, Provincial and Municipal administrators receive about $100,000,000 in taxes, duties and excise, and as this is a revenue, it is a direct saving to us we say but an asset from an economic standpoint. Yes, with the raw material to augment it, to say nothing of our income tax, which enables us swell the amount. If this is giving our business economists any concern, let them compare this with the large amounts that are spent out of general taxation in a futile endeavor to carry out the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment, in the United States, to say nothing of its moral effects upon the body politic. Such statements are like those that refer to the enormous sums wagered on horse racing: Illustrating, if 100 cases are run and the pari-mutual machines registered $1,000,000 with a 12 per cent tax, then only $238,800 is actually wagered, divided as follows: $50,000 to the Government as a tax, $100,000 to the Racing Association for purses, expenses and profits, (if any) and $138,800 to the bettors, who lose being $138,000 instead of $1,000,000 that has passed through the machine. Such misleading statements when not detailed, may be instrumental in keeping Mondoville on the back and callouses from the hands of the professional "Pussyfooters" as well as creating misapprehension, yet it can hardly be considered morally or economically ethical. In conclusion, I might add that it would be more to our interests to follow the precepts of our sister municipality by catering to the wants of our touring visitors as well as to our stable thoroughbreds by passing a plebiscite on beer parlors and do away with our blind pigs, as well as having a mile track at the Willows. The difference in the revenue from races and other sports would pay interest and sinking fund for any such outlay and make a fair condition grounds in reality.

Toward better things and deeper
Each cherished vision leads to light

No tyranny that can deny
The soul its freedom;

CAR DRIVER WILL APPEAR IN COURT FOLLOWING CRASH

As the outcome of an automobile accident on Equimalt Road, late Friday night, Charles Hewston, drydock worker, of Dock Street in Esquimalt police court tomorrow afternoon on a charge of driving to the common danger.

Hewston, in a "drive yourself" car, was proceeding west on Esquimalt Road, according to reports furnished Esquimalt police, and on nearing Macaulay avenue his car struck the wheel of an automobile proceeding to the city, and driven by Mr. D. M. Blondart, Vancouver.

After hitting Mrs. Blondart's car, the auto cut his the front right wheel of a vehicle being driven by H. Cairn, Colquerean, which had almost come to a standstill on the right-hand side of the road.

Hewston's car, still continuing its journey, snapped a guy wire holding a telephone pole, crossed the ditch and jumped an adjacent fence. Further damage was added by the smashing of a fence on Esquimalt Road, and damaging part of a lateral fence on Major Mulcahy's property.

Hewston escaped without injury despite the fact that the car which he was driving lost both its front wheels, had its fenders smashed and was buried well above the axle in dirt when it came to rest.

The other cars involved were slightly damaged.

LECTURES ARE PREPARED FOR BROADCASTING

English Folk Dance Society's Visit Will Be Among Features of National Council of Education

MAJOR F. J. NEY RETURNS HERE

"I have brought back some specially prepared lectures by outstanding men which have been specially recorded for broadcasting purposes, and we hope to arrange for programmes of them during the Winter months," said Major F. J. Ney, executive secretary of the National Council of Education, who arrived in the city yesterday afternoon.

Major Ney, who has spent an active Summer in work for the council and his Summer school, since he was in Victoria and Vancouver managing the great conference on education and leisure, went on to explain that among some of these lectures would be addresses by Mr. John Drinkwater, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, Dr. Frank Dyson ("Harvest of the Heavens, illustrated by the Winchester Singers"), and similar leaders.

In addition to the general programme, Major Ney, who has come to Victoria at this time to attend the reorganization meeting of the local committee tomorrow, says that the National Council proposes to initiate debates by outstanding speakers, during the Winter, on all important problems will be discussed.

Sir Barry Jackson, who will be here this week, will open the season's engagements of the council. He has devoted his life to the drama, and in the past fourteen years has produced nearly 200 plays of British and foreign authors.

Speaking of the programme, Major Ney alluded to the forthcoming visit of the English Folk Dance Society, headed by Mr. Douglas Kennedy, a party of sixteen dancers and musicians. Mrs. Mary Elliott Hobbs, M.B.E., who toured Canada in 1928, will accompany the party as pianist. Mr. Kennedy will succeed Cecil Sharp in 1924, will be his lecturer.

Which national film will be feature "The Boko," a remarkable film presented to the council by the Government of Czechoslovakia. It is a film of youth in search of mental and physical health.

"The Epic of the South Pole" is a film of the last expedition of Captain Scott in Antarctica, and the third film will be "Flint Magic," a British film in colors.

Another feature is the visit of Arti Palacion, national librarian of Ireland, of special interest in view of the fact that Ireland will celebrate next year the thousandth anniversary of parliamentary institutions in the island.

MONS VETERANS ARE GUESTS OF LEGION BRANCH

"Old Contemptibles" Are Entertained by British Campaigners Branch of Canadian Legion

SPEAKER DESCRIBES RETREAT FROM MONS

About forty officers, noncommissioned officers and men of the "Old Contemptibles," that portion of the British Army which so conspicuously covered itself with unfading glory in the first early months of the Great War and made possible the ultimate victory of the Allies, assembled last night at a banquet here.

The remnants of this distinguished band who were able to attend are still resident in British Columbia and at the time of the outbreak of the war were attached to various British regiments. Last night they were the guests in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce of the British Campaigners Branch of the Canadian Legion at the dinner which followed a day spent in visiting the city and district.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lorne Ross, D.S.O., was in the chair and the feature of the evening was the address of Lieutenant-Colonel W. W. Foster on "The Glorious Retreat From Mons," the annual dinner being given to commemorate that illustrious event in British army annals.

One of the guests had traveled from the 400 miles from a logging camp on the Mainland in order to be present on the occasion, the journey taking him four days. Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, extended a welcome on behalf of the Government, and Mayor Andrew Lemon, on behalf of the City. Appreciated songs and music formed part of the proceedings.

The toast to "His Majesty the King" was followed by the silent toast "The Last Post," and introductory remarks by Lieut.-Col. Lorne Ross, D.S.O. Colonel Ross, in welcoming the "Old Contemptibles" on behalf of the British Campaigners Branch of the Canadian Legion, said he hoped this would not be the last such a gathering would be held in Victoria. He hoped that as many for any real account of what happened to have been written, but when this history came to be written, no finer chapter would be composed of what happened in August, 1914. It was not the soldier that made war, but the state of mind among the nations. War could not be called the highest stage of civilization, but under the conditions in which they lived it was obviously their duty to be prepared for it.

Before describing the event, to which his listeners paid attention as great as if the events were of yesterday, the speaker referred to the attitude of the Government in regard to the way they first turned their attention to France, and to the under-estimation of the forces Great Britain could put into the field. Colonel Foster said that Germany's intelligence service evidently let them down very badly in the idea Germany possessed that there was no possibility at all of the overseas Dominions joining in with the Mother Country.

"When the honor of the Mother Country was at stake every one of its children overseas said that that country had stood by them," stated the speaker. Germany, whose army was better equipped and better disciplined, absolutely under-estimated what the power of Great Britain would be.

Colonel Foster dealt with the work done by the First Expeditionary Force, describing the attack, giving a general idea of what took place on that epochal occasion, and pointing out how the gigantic retirement was carried out, fighting step by step all the way, which was the task which fell to the lot of the British. In the course of his recital he mentioned, in illustration of the heroism which actuated the troops, that one battalion alone, in the course of one day, lost twenty-five officers and 600 men.

Mr. Beaumont Boggs proposed the toast of "The Old Contemptibles," the response to which was given by Mr. A. H. Anderson, president of the Old Contemptibles' Association, and the singing of "God Save the King" brought the evening, at a late hour, to a conclusion.

MEMBERS PRESENT

Lieut.-Col. W. W. Foster, D.S.O., a map of the environs being shown on the wall and used in illustration by the speaker.

Nothing, said the speaker, in any era had shown greater courage. In all probability they were too young for any real account of what happened to have been written, but when this history came to be written, no finer chapter would be composed of what happened in August, 1914. It was not the soldier that made war, but the state of mind among the nations. War could not be called the highest stage of civilization, but under the conditions in which they lived it was obviously their duty to be prepared for it.

WIDOWS HAD NO CHANCE IN ISLE OF BALI

GIRLS HAVE TEETH CHIPPED

Writer, traveler and lecturer, Mr. Harry O. Ostrander was a passenger aboard the Empress of Russia when she docked from the Orient yesterday afternoon. After a tour which took him from America to Fiji, Tonga Islands, Samoa, Pago Pago, Australia, Celebes, Bali, Java, Borneo, Sumatra, Siam, Cambodia, Cochin China, Annam and Japan.

On his tour, which he undertook for the purpose of obtaining material for the lectures and a series of lectures, Mr. Ostrander had many interesting experiences, among his still photographs there are 2,500 subjects, the majority of which will be utilized for lantern slides. He also carried a movie camera with good results.

Telling about the high lights of his travels, Mr. Ostrander said he did not enjoy the Australian Winter in July, and he had not lingered there very long, going to Celebes on a small Dutch steamer from Australia. The character and beauty of this island impressed him very much. From there he went to the island of Bali. This was an isle of wonder, with a population of one million people. The temples there were hard to describe, being highly beautiful, and that only recently come to be at all known. It is but twenty-three years since the Dutch, after they had trled on several occasions, succeeded in gaining control of the administration of Bali. The opportunity came when a princess of the island sought refuge in Java and appealed to the Dutch authorities for assistance and succor. According to Mr. Ostrander, it was the custom of the natives to burn all widows alive, and the princess, losing her husband, did not wait for the treatment to be meted out to her, with the result that the Dutch got control through rendering her aid. Mr. Ostrander has a picture of the princess, who is now very wealthy and the proprietor of extensive interests. From Bali he journeyed to Java on a small steamer, carrying only four white passengers, her cargo consisting of fifteen hundred pigs and two hundred bulls.

In Borneo, Mr. Ostrander traveled inland on a little river boat to the head of the island. The river was infested with crocodiles and the woods along the way with monkeys. He had seen several Dyaks, and met some members of the Mohken and entific party who were in the interior of Borneo studying the head hunters.

Sumatra had thirty cities and was being developed rapidly. He was most interested in the Battaks of that country. At one time their favorite dish was missionary. It seems that the Battaks used to eat their grandfathers. It was the custom for a man when he had reached a certain age to climb a cocoanut tree below which were gathered the members of the community, and fall off, illustrating the falling of an overripe fruit. Then lie was cooked and eaten. The missionaries objected to this and a number of them were eaten as a result of the objection. The Battaks now have to be satisfied with dog meat. A peculiar custom practised by the Battaks at present is that of filing the teeth of the young women of marriageable age. This is done in the market places, the teeth being chipped with a cold chisel and hammer. It is a brutal custom and causes death in some instances.

Mr. Ostrander motored for twenty-five hundred miles from Bangkok to the borders of Cambodia, through that country to Cochin China, and thence into Annam. Cambodia was flooded with water at the time of his visit, and in Annam he was left one night in the jungle country alone, which was infested with tigers. The motor coach had got in trouble. The other passengers and the driver deserted him, but he felt that the records of his travels were too valuable to leave to Fate. In Siam, he visited the ruined city recently located, and which had been destroyed by the Burmese some two hundred years ago. It was very interesting to Mr. Ostrander is proceeding to New York, that city being his headquarters.

To Encourage Game Hunters To Visit B.C.

Following the visit of Mr. A. Bryan Williams, game commissioner for the province, to the capital, there has been a new system of fees brought into effect, which will be made to apply to all carcasses of big game or any game animal which may be exported from the province.

The present fee covering the export of any carcass of big game will be $1; for live moose, mountain sheep, wapiti, caribou or grizzly bear, $25; for live black or brown bear, mountain goat or mule deer, $15; for live elk, $5; for beaver, fox or marten, $15; for fisher, $20; for lynx, or mink, $10, and for musk-rat, $2.

FIELD TRIALS ARE NEAR END

Gun Dog Club Will Wind Up Events on Wednesday and Thursday—Many Valuable Trophies

PUBLIC INVITED TO SEE TRIALS

The programme of field trials being carried out by the Victoria and District Gun Dog Club will be brought to a conclusion next Wednesday and Thursday.

The trials on these two days will consist of an open all age stake for sporting spaniels, and an open all age stake for retrievers. It is not essential that the dogs entered in these trial be registered, the only stipulations being that they be thoroughbred beyond question of doubt.

The club anticipates that the land trials will be concluded by Wednesday night, the water test being scheduled to commence on Thursday at 1 p.m. on the grounds at Esquimalt used for the contest last year.

C. N. Barker, of Cobble Hill, who judged last year, will again adjudicate, and collaborating with him will be C. Barbery-Starkey, of Oak Bay. With men of this calibre making the awards, contestants are assured of clear and equitable decisions based on a knowledge of dogs amassed only through years of experience in field trials and shooting.

No small amount of interest is due Victoria in that these will be the first spaniel trials to be held west of the Rockies, and the first retriever trials on the American continent. Several valuable cups have been donated for these trials. Mr. Chevrier, proprietor of the Arandale Kennels, Winnipeg, the largest springer spaniel kennels in the world, has sent a valuable trophy for the best springer spaniel having won at a field trial. C. Dennis, of Pheidia Kennels, Victoria, is presenting a handsome cup for the best Welsh springer breed in British Columbia. H. M. Redpath, of Victoria, is also the donor of a cup which has not yet been assigned. In addition there will be the usual cash prizes.

The entry fee in each of these stakes is $25.00 and the trials have been purposely kept low in order to get these trials off to a good start. Entries will be received by the secretary, J. H. Turnbull, of Sidney, B.C., at any time by mailing entry money and name and breed of dog to him, and will also be received at a meeting of the club on Tuesday at 8 p.m. at its headquarters in the Westholme Hotel.

The field trial party is scheduled to leave the Westholme Hotel at 8 a.m. Wednesday, and anyone who wishes to attend will be guided to the grounds. An invitation is extended by the club to the public who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity of seeing highly trained dogs at work under actual shooting conditions, to attend.

Pretty Wedding in Colquitz Church

COLQUITZ, Oct. 26.—The Centennial Church, Gorge Road, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Thursday evening, when Rev. George Pringle united in marriage Doris Rose Osman, older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Osman, Dalby Avenue, Marigold, and Mr. Albert Samson Lloyd, younger son of Mr. A. E. Lloyd, Burnside Road.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion by friends of the bride, under the direction of Mrs. C. V. Milton and Mrs. Nichol, son. Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in her lace-trimmed gown of shell pink crepe back satin, with which was worn the conventional tulle veil held in place by clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, carnations and fern.

Attending as bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Miss Edith Osman, wearing a dainty frock of blue georgette and Miss Lorna Griffith, in a primrose-shaded taffeta frock. Miss Mollie Milton made a dainty flower girl in a dress of silver cloth, with frills of lace, carrying a basket of pink carnations and maidenhair fern. Mr. James J. Osman supported the groom.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. J. Hebden sang "All Joy Be Thine," and appropriate wedding music was played throughout the ceremony by Mrs. Paul Green. Following the service at the church, a largely-attended reception was held in the Marigold Hall.

The happy couple left on the midnight boat for Vancouver and the Sound cities, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride travelling in a brown crepe back satin dress with brown cloche hat and coat to match. On their return they will reside in Victoria.

POPULAR BRIDE WED LAST NIGHT

MISS DOROTHY HICKS IS MARRIED TO MR. I. H. WOODBURN, OF VANCOUVER

Big Congregation at Metropolitan Church Attends Ceremony—To Live in Vancouver

In the presence of a big congregation, a wedding of much interest was solemnized last evening at 8.30 o'clock at the Metropolitan United Church when Dorothy Lettitia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Hicks, 830 Trutch Street, Victoria, became the bride of Mr. Ian Holt Woodburn, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Woodburn, of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria, Ireland. Rev. W. J. Sippreil, D.D., was the officiating minister and Mr Edward Parsons, who presided at the organ, played the wedding music, including the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin and the Mendelssohn Wedding March, during the bride's entry and departure from the church, and the beautiful programme of incidental music which included "The Consecration to the Minster" from Lohengrin, Dubois's "Benediction Nuptial," and the "Coronation March" from Meyerbeer's opera, "The Prophet."

The bridal group and the setting were unusually beautiful, the church having been elaborately decorated for the occasion by Mrs. Parsons and girl friends of the bride. Masses of late Autumn flowers, chiefly dahlias, in all the apricot, bronze and golden shades were intermingled with palms and Autumn foliage to form a glowing bank of color about the pulpit platform, and during the ceremony the bridal pair stood beneath a canopy of white dahlias, from which depended a floral wedding bell.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Gideon Hicks, the bride was a lovely picture in her French gown of Chantilly lace over ivory satin, the bodice made on princess lines, tightly moulded to the hips and the full lace skirt with tiperm flounces falling over a long circular flared underdress of silk net, the uneven hemline delicately traced with pearls. The bridal veil, worn coronet fashion, was of net and real lace exquisitely embroidered with silk and pearls, held in place with a half-wreath of orange blossoms worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day. The bridal bouquet was of butterfly roses, lilies of the valley, and maidenhair fern.

The bride had three attendants, a matron of honor and two bridesmaids. The matron of honor, Mrs. Henry Drummond Dee, wore a charming frock of Nile green satin and net point d'esprit, with long tight-fitting satin bodice and a frilled and flared skirt of point d'esprit over silk net reaching to the ankles. A girdle, tied with a bow and long streamers of shaded green moire finished the bodice. The hat worn with this charming ensemble was a French model of Nile green felt trimmed with tarquitay embroidery, and the bouquet was a sheaf of crab apple colored gladioli.

The bride's two sister, the Misses Beatrice and Gertrude Hicks, were the bridesmaids, who were gowned alike in crab apple shaded velvet and net point d'esprit. The long close-fitting bodices were adorned with a narrow belt at the waistline and the ankle-length skirts were of point d'esprit over silk net, the hip-line emphasized by a cluster of gold French flowers. The charmingly picturesque hats worn with the frocks were of crab apple velvet, the brims being of gold lace. Each bridesmaid carried a sheaf of gold gladioli.

The best man was Mr. Kallock Heming, of Victoria, and the ushers were Mr. Donald Wylie and Mr. Gurth E. Buchan, of Vancouver; the bride's brother, Mr. Nelson Hicks and Mr. Harry Dee, of Victoria. During the signing of the register Mr. Nelson Hicks gave a very beautiful interpretation of "Beloved, It Is Morn."

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Trutch Street. The reception rooms were profusely decorated with flowers, the bride and bridegroom standing under an arch of palms and Autumn foliage while receiving the felicitations of their friends. Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Gideon Hicks, the bride's mother, who wore a graceful gown of amber lace and a French hat of brown velvet with gold trimming, and Miss Rutter, of Vancouver, whose handsome gown was of black satin and Spanish lace. The wedding cake occupied the position of honor in the centre of the supper table arranged as a buffet and artistically decorated with roses and smilax.

Later in the evening the bride and bridegroom left for their honeymoon amid showers of good wishes, the bride travelling in a dress of gray and blue silk, with which she wore a coat of midnight blue broadcloth, heavily trimmed with grey opossum. Her hat, shoes, gloves and purse were of midnight blue.

On their return from the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Woodburn will live in Vancouver.

DRY CLEANING

Valeteria

Our Dry Cleaning process includes the famous Valeteria Service—as your suit is pressed we shape it—the coat, on a special collar press; the shoulder on a shoulder press; form presses shape the front; a trouser press shapes the trousers (a skirt press shapes the skirt).

Dyeing

A special department manned by trained experts provides a dyeing service that is almost miraculous. Here daily garments faded, but otherwise serviceable garments, are transformed into new creations of fashionable color.

Rug and Carpet Service

A special vacuum shampoo process is provided for the perfect cleansing of your rugs. Laid out flat, a soft brush with a circular motion swishes creamy suds and pure water right down deep into every fibre of them—next they are thoroughly rinsed—water vacuumed away, then hung for many hours in a special drying room. The result is surprisingly beautiful.

Twenty-First Birthday of Metchosin Women's Institute Is Also Celebrated by Gathering

MR. C. H. DICKIE IS SPEAKER

Fine "Coming of Age" Cake Is Presented for Occasion by District Farmers' Institute

METCHOSIN, Oct. 26—The Metchosin Hall was crowded to capacity on Friday evening, when the Metchosin Women's Institute staged the third annual pioneer entertainment, at the same time celebrating the twenty-first anniversary of the founding the Women's Institute.

Mr. Henry Helgeson was in the chair and read a letter from the Lieutenant-Governor expressing his regrets that owing to previous engagements on the Mainland he and Miss Mackenzie were unable to be present.

MR. C. H. DICKIE

Mr. C. H. Dickie M.P., who is an old-timer, spoke on the work of the Women's Institute, referring to what it had accomplished during the late war.

He mentioned forestry work, stressing the fact that areas that had been badly burned over were a total loss, as the growth that sprung up was worthless and not merchantable timber.

Mrs. M. E. McVicker president of the Metchosin Women's Institute read several telegrams and letters of congratulation, also speaking on the obtaining of souvenirs of pioneer days. The following presidents of Women's Institutes spoke congratulatory of the Metchosin Institute and wishing it success in the future: Mrs. Booth, district board; Mrs. Lawrie, South Saanich; Mrs. Campbell, Strawberry Vale; Mrs. Reed, South Salt Spring; Mrs. Acreman, Rocky Mts.; Mrs. Anderson, Shirley; Mrs. Hopwood, Colwood, and Mrs. Toomey, Langford.

The birthday cake donated by the Metchosin Farmers' Institute was much admired, being decorated with the Women's Institute colors and twenty-one candles, and was appropriately cut by Mrs. Sweatman, the vice-president of the institute twenty-one years ago.

MUSIC PROGRAMME

The music programme was excellent. Mrs. Wilfred Ord giving a humorous monologue in her own inimitable style, and her pupils Jean Clemency Ord and Miss Evelyn Valiant showed great talent.

The Imperial Male Quartette from the Arena Club delighted the audience, and little Marvan Peterson and Gwen Dewar gave a finished exhibition of Scottish dancing and and the Sailor's hornpipe, accompanied by Pipe-Major Wishart, who is piper to the Lieutenant-Governor.

Mr. Burnell gave a song "My Ain Frank," in true Scottish style.

The music for the dance was supplied by Mrs. Crereshank, piano; Mr. Greenham, banjo, and Mr. Alexander, violin, old-time dances being much in evidence. The Metchosin Institute supplied the refreshments.

NANAIMO'S WATER SUPPLY IS SMALL

Underwriter's Manager Points Out Its Inadequacy and Declares City's Condition Dangerous

NANAIMO, Oct. 26.—The executive committee of the Fire Insurance Agents' Association of the City of Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria and Nanaimo, together with the representatives of all board insurance companies doing business in the province of British Columbia, met here in conference today.

The joint meetings took all afternoon from 1:30 to 6:30, and many matters pertaining to the insurance profession were discussed and debated, delegates feeling at the close of the sessions that they had well spent their time in attending the conference. The company managers and representatives at 7:30 p.m. in the evening were hosts to the members of the joint executive committees at the most delightful banquet ever held in the history of the Malaspina Hotel. The private dining room was a blaze of mirth and the table decorations elicited many complimentary remarks from the guests. Mr. Leach, manager of the hotel, personally supervised the serving of the dinner, which was a huge success.

One of the important statements in the remarks made by the guests who proposed and responded to the toasts was that made by Mr John L. Noble manager of the British Columbia Underwriters Association, that the conditions of Nanaimo's water service were deplorable, and that in view of what he saw yesterday he felt it imperative that his engineers make an almost immediate survey of this city, with the object in view of revising the entire city. He drew attention to the gathering in the picture on the front page of the menu card, which depicted a city being destroyed by fire, and he said what a strange coincidence it was that they in Vancouver had chosen the picture, little realizing that it illustrated the imminent danger in which Nanaimo stood, that of being wiped out by fire.

Among those present were Messrs. F. W. Rounsefell, J. Hunter Harrison, C. V. Wakely, who are president, honorary president and vice-president of the board of underwriters respectively.

There were also present Mr. Whillis, of Kelowna, president of Interior Agents' Association; and Mr. Burton, of Kamloops, secretary of the same association.

This was the automobile game, for which pictures of automobiles cut in pieces had to be joined correctly, the "radiator filled" by throwing apples into crocks placed at the far end of the room, and "mending a blowout" by blowing feathers out of a bottle. The reception room had been arranged with Autumn flowers, the supper table being particularly attractive with yellow and pink streamers from the centre light to the table, which was centred with a birthday cake decorated with yellow and white icing, and twenty-one candles in yellow, pink and white, floral decorations of chrysanthemums were also used.

At twelve p.m. supper was served following which some of the guests left for a dance at Watchdam.

Miss Wyllie was presented with a beautiful silk umbrella by her friends, and also received many other gifts from members of her family. The guests present included the following: Mr. and Mrs. O. C. ### SAYS SPECULATION IS NOT FAVORED

Aboard the Empress of Russia yesterday morning, en route to New York and London, was Mr. J. Tsushima, finance commissioner for the Government of Japan to Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Tsushima said that Japan, in order to practically demonstrate her desire, had voluntarily slowed up all naval construction pending the result of the Arms Conference. The Japanese financier stated that Japan was eager to co-operate in every way at the forthcoming conference. Mr. Reijiro Wakatsui, former Premier of Japan, would be the representative of Japan at that conference.

Referring to financial matters, Mr. Tsushima stated that the trade of his country had made great improvements during the current year. "Our Government is doing its utmost to keep down expenditures, and is determined to put the country's finances on a strong basis. Our financial structure is extremely good, and occurrences like the panic on the New York Exchange could not happen in Japan, where the people are shy of stock speculations," he said.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Flip Consults Bowser

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A little knowledge oft will make
The basis for a great mistake.
—Bowser the Hound.

Flip the Terrier had learned that when he was puzzled by things he saw, the best thing to do was to go and ask Bowser the Hound. He had learned to have a great deal of respect for Bowser's knowledge. Now that he was so badly puzzled by the queer appearance of Striped Chipmunk, Flip decided that he would go and consult Bowser the Hound. He found Bowser taking a sun bath over near his little house.

"Bowser! Wake up, Bowser!" cried Flip.

Bowser lazily opened one eye, then just as lazily opened the other eye. He yawned. Then he stretched. "Well," said he, "what is it now?"

"Have you seen Striped Chipmunk lately?" asked Flip.

"I saw him yesterday. What about him?" replied Bowser.

"Was there anything the matter with him yesterday when you saw him?" inquired Flip.

"Nothing at all," replied Bowser. "I have never seen him look better."

"Well," replied Flip in a most decided manner, "there is something the matter with him today, or else there is another Chipmunk over there living in that hole."

Bowser looked mildly interested. "Of course," said he, "there may be another Chipmunk living there, but I doubt it. It isn't the right time of the year. I don't believe Striped Chipmunk would invite anybody to come there and live with him at all Winter. What was the matter with him, anyhow, you say?"

"That's what I want to find out," replied Flip. "Never have I seen such a sight. Come over and watch that hole for a few minutes, Bowser, and see for yourself."

Now Bowser was exceedingly comfortable right where he was. "I'm too lazy," he complained. "You tell me what you saw."

"No, I won't do that," replied Flip. "I want somebody else to see what I saw and then I'll be sure that I saw what I saw."

"You mean," said Bowser, "that you are not sure that you saw what you saw?"

"That's just it," replied Flip. "I want somebody else to see what I saw, that I may be sure that I saw what I saw."

Now, Bowser is very good natured, so just to please Flip he went with him to where they could sit down and watch Striped Chipmunk's hole. Presently Striped Chipmunk popped out of it and disappeared in the grass.

Presently Striped Chipmunk popped out of it and disappeared in the grass

"Was that Striped Chipmunk?" asked Flip.

"Certainly. Who else would it be?" replied Bowser.

"Wait," replied Flip. "Wait till he comes back."

So Bowser waited, and after a while back came a Chipmunk. But this time he had had enough of fun and out of shape just as it had been when Flip had seen it before. As soon as the little fellow had disappeared in Striped Chipmunk's hole Flip turned to Bowser. "There," said he, "who was that?"

"Why, Striped Chipmunk, of course," replied Bowser.

"It couldn't have been," declared Flip, beginning to get excited. "It couldn't have been! Did you see how out of shape that fellow's head was? Striped Chipmunk's head wasn't like that when he left."

Then Bowser began to chuckle. Something amused him. He was so full of mirth that he actually had down and rolled over. Now, no one likes to be laughed at, and Flip is just like the rest of us. He began to lose his temper. "What's the joke?" he demanded. "What are you laughing at?"

"Excuse me!" said Bowser at last. "I'll explain to you in a minute. It was Striped Chipmunk all the time. You simply saw him with his pocketfuls full."

"You have, my dear, to tell you so quite frankly. You could have had anyone in New York for your friend—if you had been content to remain your sister-in-law! But you were trying so desperately to be something you really weren't. Benny, on the other hand, was always just himself—and everybody adored him, simply adored him."

"And I was afraid that people would think him very vulgar."

"The only really annoying vulgarity in the world," Lady Margaret told her gravely, "is pretence. I'm sorry, my dear, if I've said anything to hurt your feelings."

"No—I deserved it," said Flo, after a moment of silence.

"You were due for a second dump, you know, but I'm terribly sorry everything happened at once like this. It is so awfully distressing. Though I daresay that's the only way that most of us ever come into wisdom. Have you made any plans, my dear?"

Flo shook her head.

"I shouldn't feel at all bad about it. Alec if I were you. Half the women have found him out—and he isn't yet thirty-five years old. Extraordinary how the fellow does get about."

"I'm not even thinking of him," Flo protested.

"Bunny—well, I am very sorry about that. You might have been so happy together. But it's so often that way, isn't it? We never realize how sweet the summer months have been until the Autumn winds begin to blow. My word!" she broke off suddenly. "I sound like a sentimental song."

She gathered up her gloves and handbag. "Well, I must be getting along. I didn't come here to give you a sermon. Really I didn't."

"I'm glad you did, Lady Margaret." Flo looked up wistfully, and her voice quavered.

Lady Margaret arose and draw on her gloves. "You really must come and call on me when I get back to town later on. I'm going up to Tuxedo to do over Charley Quarrier's house. He married an English girl, you know—Burgrave's daughter—Lady Amabel Gaythorn she was. Her grandfather, the old earl, was one of my father's best friends. And in November I'm invited to go on a cruise in Pelham Henry's yacht. As a matter of fact, Benny's been asked to go along, too. It's really Rita Kent's party. Have you heard about it?"

Flo's blue eyes opened wider, but she said nothing. She didn't know what to say.

"I expect that I shall be back in town before Christmas," Lady Margaret said. "Will you be staying on here, do you suppose?"

"No. I—I don't think I will. I can't afford it."

It was the new Flo speaking, the old Flo would never have dreamed such a confession to anyone.

"Well—Lady Margaret gave her a smile and a friendly handshake—"I wish you the best of luck, my dear. Good-bye."

After she had gone, Flo slipped to her knees once more among the disorderly piles of dresses, shoes and hats. She had to do her own packing now. Her maid had left that morning, threatening a lawsuit over two weeks' unpaid wages. Flo had no money to pay. No money at all.

A.T.A., Mr. Ben Drew, president of the A.Y.P.A. Council at Vancouver, and Mr. S. O. Hawkins, Western secretary, expressing appreciation of the services of the movement to the Anglican denomination.

Following the supper, a short sectional rally was held by the 100 members attending, to consider ways in which the association could help the church. A dance brought the day's programme to a close.

ST. ANN'S GIRLS GIVE JOAN OF ARC

Historic Play Presented for Big Audiences at Convent Auditorium

"Joan of Arc" was presented in the auditorium of St. Ann's Convent on Friday afternoon and evening by the Aquinas Literary Society before most appreciative audiences. The cast was well chosen, and the acting showed careful training and attention to detail, and clever lighting effects suitable costuming and excellent stage setting enhanced the effect. The village green of Domremy was shown in the first act, with a group on happy peasant girls on holiday, dancing with spirit and grace, their brightly-colored skirts, white blouses and little velvet bodices adding to the charm of the picture. Drusilla O'Neil, Sheila O'Connell, Patricia Kelly, Louise Fry, Evelyn de la Hay, Bandi Sorenson, Veronica Neary, Eileen Regan, Jean Cameron and Genevieve Maddon were the village girls, and their merry chatter was quite refreshing. Joan's home was shown in the second act, a simple, candle-lighted cottage, with plain deal furniture, and a fire glowing on the hearth, while from a window twilight might be seen deepening upon the purple hills. Joan, cleverly portrayed by Patricia Petherbridge, was seen seated at her spinning wheel, and, with her mother, Dame d'Arc (Georgina Olsney) and her young sister, Marie (Leonore Fletcher), gave an impression of quiet, domesticity and peace, beginning to be stirred by Joan's mission, to bewildered uncertainty. Lady Lorraine, Joan's godmother, was impersonated by Thelma Lee, with dignity and grace. She was attended by a diminutive page, Rolls Betty Grimson. Act three was in brilliant contrast as the Court of Dauphin Charles VII. Mae Murray in the role of the Dauphin, gave a dignified presentation of the future king, who with his cousin, Count Dunois (Jeanne Levesque) and his sister, Lady Agnes (Kathleen Burtt), held counsel together their picturesque costumes and their animated discourse called forth generous applause. The event of Lady Claire La Hire (Margaret Davis) with news of Joan's triumphant victory, and the presence of many courtiers and pages, Barbara Pollard, as a court lady, and Marjorie Webb, Pearl Thomas, Irene Quaglioti, Michael O'Brien, Elma Gagnon, Laurence Lapointe and other attendants and soldiers, formed a colorful background for the advent of the victorious Maid, whose clever identification of the disguised Dauphin was prettily acted. In act four, the trial of Joan before a board of stern-faced judges—Beatrix Logan, Adele Combe, Phyllis St. Laurent, Louise Brennan and Elaine Adam—whither she was solemnly escorted by a jailer (Helen Tulk), and two formidable guards (Marie Cotter and Pauline Ridge-Partington), was touchingly enacted. Knights and Generals were Eve Jensen, Lucille Noble, Ellen Worth, Bernadette Colbert and Ruth Wingard.

Throughout the performance the young actresses were intensely in their various roles, which they played with earnestness and fidelity and an appreciation of the tragedy and pathos of their subject was felt by the sympathetic audience. A charming feature of the evening presentation was the music between acts, when Mrs. D. B. McConnell, accompanied by Miss Dunsterville, and with violin obbligato by Miss Irene Blair, sang "By the Waters of Minnetonka," and Mrs. E. R. Creery, accompanied by Miss Brunton, "The Star," with "Jack and Jill" in response as an encore. Miss Blick was also heard in a delightful rendering of "Chansonette," Ambrosio, accompanied by Miss Dumbleton, and in an encore number. A stirring chorus of subdued music from the wings, and soft organ preludes added to the impressiveness of the drama from time to time, and only music was heard while Joan held some minutes with the Voices. A thrilling tableau of the burning in the market place of Rouen called down the curtain.

The furnishings and draperies used during the play were through the courtesy of Messrs. R. Spencer, Limited, and the lovely lighting effects by the courtesy of Messrs. Hawkins & Hayward.

KIDDIES TO ENJOY FAIRY TALE DANCE

Victoria pupils will present a political recital of "Hansel and Gretel," the charming fairy story of childhood, in dance and pantomime, at the Shrine Auditorium, View Street, November 22, at 8 p.m. The programme has been arranged by the Workall Ballet School under the direction of Boris Newikoff, late of the Russian Imperial Ballet. Hansel and Gretel," Grimm's fairy story, tells the adventures of two children, a brother and sister, who drifted into the woods, fell into the toils of the witch, who enticed little boys and girls into her house, built of gingerbread, and there ate them up. Their escape and safe return home to their kind father. Colorful scenic backgrounds and costuming have been worked out, by Mr. Newikoff, who also arranged a series of ballet numbers. In addition to the fairy story, which furnishes the plot for the principal number, there will be other dances and sketches suited to the tastes of the young audience

DEAN PRESENTS SCHOOL PRIZES

Annual Prize-Giving Held at Selkirk College—Girls Reminded of Education's Value

The Very Rev. the Dean of Columbia was the speaker at the annual prize-giving of Selkirk College, which was held on Friday afternoon. After the singing of "O Canada," the headmistress read her report. She outlined the work and progress of the past year and then referred to several of the "Old girls," who in their different walks of life continue to uphold the fine traditions of the school.

The Dean then spoke to the parents and pupils. He reminded them that education does not end with schooldays, but is a continuous development during the whole of the life and of the life to come. In particular he advised the close reading of worth-while books as a remedy against mental inertia. The Dean then presented the school with a beautiful silver cup given by Mrs. Ofelma, to be called the "Betty Jennings Trophy" for leadership. In honor of her daughter, who was a pupil of Selkirk and to her final year head of the school. The Dean explained that this is to be held each year by the girl who in work, sport and character shows most conspicuously those characteristics which make for leadership. He then presented the prizes and certificates, as follows:

Jennerett: Betty Jennings for reading and elocution, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jeanneret; Gwendolin Fraser for courtesy and unselfishness, presented by Miss Maud Roberts; Thea Wright for music, presented by Mr. O. Cockat; Blue Stephens for French, presented by Miss Bell. After this, flowers were given by three of the smallest pupils to Mrs. Quainton, Miss Roberts and Miss Hughes, and Elsie Stephens, on behalf of the girls, thanked the Dean for coming and for his kindly interest.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

One famous fashion arbiter recently confided the secret that "It has all to do the way the flare was placed"—speaking, of course, of the new silhouette. The hydrophilic unity achieved by variously placed flares noted in the three-quarter coat suit sketched above admirably illustrates the remark.

Dark green velour forms a rich background for the trimming of brown broadtail used to accent the slightly flared tiers on the otherwise straight-lined model. Bands in the same theme on the sleeves carry out the harmonious effect. Plaiterial luxury is offered by a generous shawl collar, also of broadtail.

St. Paul's Church Is Scene of Wedding

The marriage took place at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, of Joyce Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Rees, Fleming Street, and Mr. James Eddie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Margaret Eddie, Goldsmith Street, and of the late Mr. George Findlay Eddie, of Dawsdon, Scotland. Rev. J. S. Patterson officiated. Friends of the bride had decorated the church with a profusion of Autumn flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk satin, lace over white satin, and a lovely wedding veil which was held with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Cybella roses and white carnations.

Miss Marjorie Gillies was her only attendant, and wore a pretty frock of peach-colored satin and poke bonnet of black lace and velvet. Her bouquet was of pale pink roses and carnations. Mr. Archie Milnar was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Crawford Ellis and George Preston. Mr. Dallimore presided at the organ and while the register was being signed Mrs. W. Cosse sang "Because."

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and later Mr. and Mrs. Eddie left for a trip to California, the bride travelling in a dress of navy blue chiffon velvet, trimmed with fawn crepe de Chine, with a grey musical coat and blue felt Oaklanbough hat.

Among the wedding gifts received was a standard lamp from the staff of A. Macdonald & Co., Ltd., of which the bride was a member, and a silver set was sent from the staff of St. Princess Charlotte, of which ship the groom raised this year by the Boys' and Girls' Poultry Club here.

The groom's gift to the bride was a white fox fur; to the best man, a gold chain and locket; to the bridesmaid, a crystal necklet; to the groomsman, a gold cuff link; to the ushers, a jade necklet. The bride's gift to the groom was a club bag.

It will, therefore, be a matter for self-congratulation among the many people who in years gone by have seen the New Year in at Cadboro Bay to hear that the club, in order to celebrate the conclusion of one of the most successful racing and cruising seasons since the war, has appointed a committee, convened under the chairmanship of Mr. Clifford Adams, which intends that the evening of December 31 shall surpass anything that has been carried out in the past.

Modernizing Brings City Up to Date

NEAT HOUSE FROM DERELICT HOME

Modernizing Applied to Worn-Out Residence Results in Smart Little Home

Out on the edge of town you will find many small houses like the one pictured at the bottom. Built back in the days of Pree Silver they stood still while the rest of the world passed by

These are the homes of many families who yearn for better appearing dwellings but who do not realise that their hopeless looking houses are truly dull caterpillars that can be awakened into glorious butterflies.

A touch of the magic wand of modernization and a new home leaps into being—a new home based on the sturdy frame was clothed by the drab looking house of former days.

When the owners of these old houses realize how simple the transformation really is, they will wonder why they did not catch the spirit of modernization years ago

The illustration of the house before the owner called for advice shows a particularly forlorn looking affair. It is a shoe box with windows, roof and a non-descript set of additions trailing along behind. The patched fence aids immeasurably in building up an atmosphere of decay and blasted hopes.

The old front porch with its wooden machine-turned pillars remindsent of Victorian days has been supersaded by a small square stoop with round wooden columns supporting a shelter with a pitched roof, all trimmed in white. The shingled sides of the dwelling are stained

The windows at the front carry blinds, each with a shamrock cut out of a panel. The front door contains ten small panes of plate glass which aid in lighting the living-room.

The rambling additions at the back have been rejuvenated into a harmonious part of the cottage. Now they are not after thoughts but a component part of the building.

The inside of this cottage has also been modernised and made strictly up-to-date.

Observe What Modernization Did Here

In the Older Sections of Town You'll Find Many Cottages Like This. With Sturdy Timbers They Await the Touch of Modernization to Make Them Into Homes of Beauty and Comfort.

STAIRCASE ALLOWS ARTISTIC APPEAL

Fixture Should Be Made Feature of House and Treated Accordingly

Too many staircases appear to have been designed merely as a means of ascending to the upper story. The staircase may be that it should be one of the features of the house

The location of the stairs is important for many of the effects in modernizing depend on the amount of space available. Since space is the centre of the house is often available, some staircases are cramped and defy artistic treatment. If extensive alterations are possible the staircase may be changed to permit a decorative appeal.

In the older houses many of the staircases were a simple flight of steps. A long narrow hall with a straight flight may be treated in a colonial style with white woodwork and a mahoganied handrail of slender balusters.

A curved staircase makes a graceful appearance but must be designed and proportioned correctly to be effective

A third type of staircase often used is the "platform" staircase where a short flight reaches a landing or platform from which a second flight leads to the floor above. The landing should be placed about half way between the two floors and should be spacious enough to suggest repose. Often the staircase can be arranged so that a window looks off the landing. A window seat, a period chair or a grandfather's clock sometimes is placed on the landing to give it a decorative appeal.

The staircase should be constructed with wide treads and low risers so that the exertion of climbing is apparently lessened.

Before electrical fixtures, especially the hanging cluster of lights, is selected, the decorative scheme of the room should be decided. The electrical fixtures should be suitable to the general scheme of decoration and the type of furniture to be used with them.

The first real estate transaction on record in the United States in connection with aviation was consummated in 1901 when the Wright Brothers leased a 600-acre tract from the Native of Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, in order that they might conduct their gliding experiments without interference.

Obsolete Residences Are No Longer Necessary

Antiquated Residence to Live in No More Necessary Than Dress or Automobile Now in Use Should Be of Ancient Vintage

Practically every women would refuse emphatically to dress in the garments that were stylish ten years ago. And the average man would look with scorn at the thought of owning an automobile that was built back in 1918.

Yet both complacently live in a house that has the architectural design of Spanish-American war days and think nothing of it. Both put up with the inconveniences that go with such a dwelling and are satisfied with the old home.

Only recently has the home-owner begun to realize that it is no longer necessary to live in odd appearing houses simply because that was the way they were originally built. During the past year or so it has been brought to the attention of the property owner that houses clothed in out-of-date lines show as poor taste as dressing in clothes with the lines of yesteryear. Both may have utility—but how unnecessary the old lines are!

Radical changes in the appearance of the exterior of the residence are possible. The old houses are not cast in an inflexible mould that forbids alteration, but to the contrary, are plastic in the hands of the experienced builder and can emerge from his efforts dressed in the line of today.

SHOW CHANGES POSSIBLE

On this page we show a smart-looking cottage that was once a leaky, weather-beaten frame house. Illustrations of this sort are striking and focus attention on the fact that modernization accomplishes wonders in design. The before and after views point out more effectively than a thousand words the marked change in appearance that come with modernization.

The home owner who lives in an out-of-date house often hesitates to improve his dwelling because he has a mistaken idea of the costs of modernizing. These costs are usually moderate. A surprising range of improvements can be made for a small outlay.

A survey of modernization reveals that the average cost is in the neighborhood of $2,000. These figures have been compiled from a survey made covering many thousands of homes.

The relative small cost of clothing the house in a new dress and modernizing the interior emphasizes the fact that every home owner can make his dwelling up-to-date. No longer is it necessary to live under uncomfortable conditions—to go without the better things of life. Modernization is within the reach of all.

SECURING MONEY

The financial question sometimes proves to be a stumbling block to progress. The home owner has the idea of modernizing, but wonders where the money is coming from. Building and loan associations, banking institutions and private individuals are willing to loan their money on first mortgages, especially when the money is to be devoted to modernizing a home or apartment. The home owner need but make his desires known to meet with a courteous hearing. The financial institution knows that modernization adds to the value of the house. Their money is being placed in a residence, the value of which is immediately increased. The risks are small.

Some banking institutions provide a plan by which the loan may be paid off on a monthly basis, spread over a term of years the monthly cost is small. When these monthly costs are balanced against the enjoying comforts and the pride that comes with owning a house that is new and fresh, the balance is decidedly in favor of making the loan. It becomes the right thing to do.

When the old-fashioned lines are born away and the home is clothed again in the artistic architectural dress of today, a new sense of values becomes known to the home owner. The spirit of the family freshens and takes on a new growth. A keener appreciation of life results.

The Mineral Outlook on Vancouver Island

— By REECE H. HAGUE —

While, at the present time, the production of precious and base metals on Vancouver Island is negligible, this section of the province more than holds its own in the production of non-metallic mineral and structural materials.

Exploration work and mining operations which are now being carried out on both newly-discovered mineral deposits and on ore bodies, the existence of which has long been known, but which have been lying idle, would indicate that it will not be long before this section of British Columbia Mainland will also become an important producer of some at least of the metallic materials.

When one realizes that during 1928 Vancouver Island produced coal valued at more than $6,000,000, or slightly over half of the 2,500,000-odd tons mined in the whole province and that during the same period she produced structural materials to the value of nearly $2,250,000, or approximately two-thirds of all the structural materials mined in British Columbia, it conveys some impression of the vast wealth which is lying in the ground, and when the base metals, which are known to occur at various points throughout the length and breadth of the Island, commence to find their way to smelters, considerable benefit is bound to accrue not only to this district but to the province as a whole.

ADVANTAGES OVER MAINLAND

From the point of view of mining Vancouver Island has several advantages over the Northern and interior parts of the Mainland, where extensive mining operations are being carried out. Whereas the climate here is suited to prospecting and mining, the whole year round, surface work is impossible in many areas on the Mainland during the Winter months owing to the heavy covering of snow. While this means devoid of mountains, the peaks of the Island are not as precipitous as those which occur in some of the mineral-bearing areas of the Mainland, and the local mountains are not covered by glaciers which, in districts such as that surrounding Portland Canal, for instance, make prospecting difficult and hazardous and cover much of the most promising mineral-bearing territory.

In districts like the Ingenika section, which is now attracting considerable attention among mining companies and prospectors, transportation difficulties are acute, and the taking in of supplies to properties is extremely expensive. Owing to the fact, however, that in no place in Vancouver Island more than 100 miles areas, and in most parts is only approximately half that width, no matter where a mine may be found, the distance to tidewater is not great, and transportation of ore by water is considerably cheaper than freighting it by land.

One disadvantage from which the Island is labouring is the fact that at the present time there is no smelter operating on the Coast, but it seems fairly well assured that this will soon be remedied, and with a smelter operating, either on the Island or on the West Coast of the Mainland adjacent to Vancouver Island, several low-grade properties which are now producing at present should be able to ship ore at a rate which will allow them to operate profitably.

EARLY PLACER DISCOVERIES

During the past Summer I have either visited personally or obtained authentic information regarding a number of the most promising mineral deposits on Vancouver Island, but before going into the merits and demerits of various properties, it may be interesting to outline something of the history of mining in this section.

As early as 1845 the knowledge that gold occurred on Vancouver Island was no secret to the trappers and hunters of the Hudson's Bay Company, who brought in reports which led to placer miners prospecting various streams. It was not until three years later that gold was discovered on Queen Charlotte Islands, and five years later that the first gold was reported from the Skeena River. It will be seen, therefore, that the placer discoveries here antedated even the Californian rush of '49, and occurred a decade and more before the great gold rushes to the Thompson and Bridge Rivers and other Mainland districts, which occurred before the prosaic Cariboo country was discovered. When the finds of 1858 were made on the Thompson River, miners from California hurried to Vancouver Island in thousands and camped here prior to proceeding on to the Fraser River. With these stampeders went most of the placer miners who had been operating on Vancouver Island, but a few remained and one may still occasionally encounter old-time placer miners on streams off the West Coast of the Island.

Placer gold was found in streams from the extreme south to the extreme north of the Island, although most of the gold was taken from the district lying between Nootka Sound and Sooke. Nuggets worth as much as $70 were taken out of Leech River, and $30,000 was secured from this river in a little more than a month in the sixties. Goldstream, fourteen miles from Victoria, also yielded some good values. Rich pockets were found in other streams and the estimate of the total value of the placer gold taken out is given as the grand total of $1,000,000.

ALLEGED SPANISH WORKINGS

One frequently hears of prospectors who are alleged to have found traces of old Spanish placer workings on Vancouver Island, but I have never been able to obtain any definite information regarding the location of these workings. Students of the history of the Spanish occupation of Vancouver Island seem to be generally of the opinion that they were a good deal too busy and mining, the whole year round, or very much, time to mining operations. Be that as it may, the fact that they said to have worked at a river known as an arm of Nootka Sound, Rio del Ara, or Ara's River, indicates that they would seem to imply that these Spanish occupants of the Island at least found traces of the precious metal, whether or not they mined it.

Placer miners when I ednounered during my journeys through the mineral belts did not seem particularly optimistic regarding any rich deposits of placer being found of the streams of Vancouver Island in the future. Where the gold does occur, they say, it is usually fine, and the presence of large boulders in the river beds renders its recovery arduous and expensive.

Gold in place was found near Alberni in 1863, and prior to this placer miners had operated in China Creek, which runs into the Alberni Canal, but it was not until 1869 that the Alberni district commenced to attract any great degree of attention as a potential lode mining centre. A number of discoveries were made in the nineties, and considerable interest was aroused. When, in 1896, Mr. W. A. Carlyle was appointed the first provincial mineralogist of the province, he visited that section and his first bulletin, published in July of the same year, deals with the mining operations being carried on on Alberni Canal and Barkley Sound.

Prior to the appointment of Mr. Carlyle, the Mines Department had comprised the minister, Colonel James Baker, and Mr. Herbert Carmichael, who was provincial assayer and analyst. Mr. Carmichael, who is still a resident of Victoria, and engaged in active mining work as a director of the Pacific Tidewater Mines, Limited, remained as assayer and assistant mineralogist after Mr. Carlyle's appointment, and accompanied the provincial mineralogist on his first visit to the Alberni district.

The first lode claims of which any record exists at the Alberni mining recorder's office were staked by a man named Anderson and associates, in 1891, being known as the Bechart Quicksilver claims. No. 1 to 4. They were located about a mile from the beach near where the tower of Bechart now stands on Barkley Sound. Later they reverted to the Crown and were bought in at a tax sale. These claims are now held by the Canadian Quicksilver Company, Limited, which was incorporated in August, 1928, with a capitalization of $250,000, and during the past Summer several men were working on the property. The similar occurs in small seams and native quicksilver is occasionally encountered.

When I was in the district in September an examination was made of the property by Mr. V. L. Eardley-Wilmot, of the Dominion Department of Mines, and also by a representative of New York mining interests. Mr. George A. Clothier, resident mining engineer for the district, in his report on the property, stated that he thought the undertaking was worthy of support to continue development work, with fair chances of making it profitable.

About the same time as the Bechart claims were staked, four claims known as the Alberni, Chicago, Wampiro and Victoria, were located. They were under dispute for some time and have been allowed to lapse and been restaked a number of times.

THE BOOM OF 1898

The first real boom in the district occurred, however, in 1898, when for a time it vied with the East Kootenay region as the centre of interest among mining men. At that time it was, however, regarded as a gold-producing area, whereas at the present time it is the copper deposits of the district which are attracting the principal attention. In 1899, 362 claims were recorded at the Alberni recording office and a stamp mill was erected on Alberni Consolidated group. Most of the men engaged were coal miners, whose knowledge of metallic minerals and their treatment was extremely limited. After a time the property was allowed to revert to the Crown, and after many years of idleness has again been taken up under lease and a certain amount of work done on it.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent on development work on properties in the Alberni district and stamp mills erected on some properties, while others shipped to smelters, but in many cases the work was misdirected, or not done to the best advantage, and for several years there was little or no mining activity in the area.

Last year a revival of interest in the locality occurred and more claims were staked than during the three preceding years. Activity continued this year and one engineer whom I met at Port Alberni, and who had trained 10,000 miles through the mineral areas of British Columbia, looking for properties to recommend to his principals in England, informed me that in his opinion the districts which hold the greatest future promises are those adjacent to Sproat and Port Alberni.

ACTIVITY ON ISLAND COPPER

A number of old Crown-granted claims, which had reverted to the Crown, have been taken up under lease recently and many other old claims which had lapsed have been restaked. As a matter of fact, the majority of the prospectors of this locality seem to prefer to go into the office of the mining recorder and get particulars of old claims, which it is their intention to relocate rather than to go out and look for something new. Most of the activity during the Summer took place on properties which were originally discovered a number of years ago.

Probably the outstanding discovery of the season in the Alberni section has been that of high-grade chalcopyrite on the property of the Island Copper Company, where a campaign of development is at present under way and is meeting with extremely encouraging results.

In addition to small veins of an almost pure, fine-grained chalcopyrite, a large vein carrying good values in copper and gold had been located on this property. When I was on the property a crosscut tunnel was being driven with the object of encountering some of the veins at depth. The showings are adjacent to tidewater, which makes shipping simple, and satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Tacoma smelter for treating ore, which, owing to its high grade, should net a handsome profit.

Origin of Today's Fire and Police Forces Outlined

The evolution of the policeman and the fireman, from an inefficient body of very ineffectual workers who occupied a very unimportant place in municipal affairs, up to their present efficient state, was dealt with in a lecture by John Loye, on the subject, "Policemen and Firemen of Long Ago," before the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society, in the Chalmers Memorial, Montreal.

The lecture was made interesting by the use of living models wearing the costumes of firemen and policemen of former days, and showing in a vivid manner just how their dress changed with the times. The lecturer pointed out that the modern policeman developed from what was known as the "watch." It was the function of the "watch" to parade the town after dark and guard its inhabitants from any kind of surprise as well as to call out the hours. It was not until the beginning of the eighteenth century that police work took on any semblance of its present form. It was in the time of Napoleon that the word "police" was first used, and then the organization formed a part of the militia.

In England, Mr Loye said, Sir Robert Peel abolished the "watch" court, which was separate from the police court, and thus made them one. In Montreal the "watch" court lasted until 1837. In the United States it existed until 1855.

Following the French Revolution in 1833 the police, as such, came into being, the speaker explained. About that time in Montreal the policemen wore a large pale blue coat and a top hat. He was not greatly respected by the public because many robberies were committed and fire thieves thought. After the rebellion of 1837 the police came under the control of the military forces in Montreal, and the outcome changed to a blue type of frock coat with buff-colored trousers and a top hat. In 1840 the whole police force only numbered sixty-six. Finally, after the Parliament Buildings were burned, the control of the police force passed from military to municipal hands, and the top hat went out of style. In 1845 the police of Montreal appeared wearing a blue helmet, and in 1912 they adopted the white helmet and the all-blue uniform.

The firemen's costume showed just as striking a change, as also his position. Mr. Loye pointed out. In 1667 the firemen were volunteers. It was after the London fire that they were equipped with "squirts," a hand-manipulated hose, which squirted water on the fire. Insurance companies handled all fires in the old days, and it was not until 1863 that firemen were put on a paid basis. Then, and until 1906, they also had the job of watering the streets, the lecturer explained in conclusion.

Among many good stories told concerning Mr. Justice Avery's ready wit, one of the best concerns a case in which he was briefed when a practising barrister, and in the course of which one of the witnesses said he was in the Coldstream.

Whereupon the Judge interposed with the question, "What do they do at the Coldstream?"

"I understand, my lord," interjected counsel, playing up to the judge's jest, "that it means a place where the Christians fed the lions."

Mr. Horace Avery, as he then was presumed to consult his notes, and remarked solemnly: "I notice, my lord, that after leaving the Coliseum the witness went on to the Trocadero—where the Lyons feed the Christians."

BISHOP GIVES FIRST SERMON IN CATHEDRAL

Thankofferings to Be Made for Cathedral Maintenance —Young People of Conference to Attend

'CONTEMPTIBLES' AT MORNING SERVICE

Thanksgiving services for the blessings of the harvest will be held today in Christ Church Cathedral. Following celebrations of Holy Communion at 8 and 8.30 o'clock, there will be a choral service at 11 o'clock, at which the preacher will be the bishop of the diocese, the Right Rev. C. D. Schofield. This service will be the first occasion on which the bishop will preach in the new cathedral. Among the morning's congregation will be delegates from the "Old Contemptibles" of the British Campaigners' Association, and members of the Anglican Young People's Association conference, which has been in session over the week-end.

The Dean of Columbia, Very Rev. C. S. Quainton, will preach at Choral Evensong this evening at 7.30 o'clock. The usual afternoon service for boys and girls of all ages, and for parents with young children, will be conducted at 3 o'clock, when Rev. E. W. P. Carter will give an address.

Thankofferings at all services today will be devoted to the fund for maintaining the new cathedral and its work. "A dual motive will animate these thankofferings," it was wrote in last week's issue of The Cathedral Leaflet, "gratitude for all God's gifts in the material harvest, and gratitude for the noble and its increased use on weekdays new cathedral." With the addition of Bishop's Hall, it is hoped that today's thankofferings will go a long way towards meeting the extra cost involved in maintaining the cathedral.

Rev. A. W. The visiting preacher will take for his subject in the morning, "If Paul Had Only One Sermon to Preach—and in the evening the cryptic title of his sermon is "Tadmor."

Moderators Clasp Hands Symbolic of Scottish Reunion

Historic Occasion of Church Unity Makes Great Impression Upon Scotland as Crowds Throng Church, Hall and Edinburgh's Streets—Many Delegates Bring Greetings

Minority Is Designated The Continuing Church

A DEEP impression was evidently made upon Scotland by the event of October 2 in Edinburgh when, after a separation of eighty-six years the Church of Scotland and the United Free Church were merged into the reunited Church of Scotland. The British papers have lavish space to what is deemed a truly historic occasion. Three thousand members of the United Presbyterian marched in the blended procession to old St. Giles' Cathedral—formerly the Norman McLean, the Temple of Conciliation—and in that church of a thousand memories and church's hands,' and on one occasion Dr. John White 'the moderator of the first General Assembly of the reunited Church of Scotland,' and placed the moderatorship upon his finger. A message from the King expressing his "unfeigned satisfaction" with the union, was read. The Duke of York gave a memorable survey of the meaning of the reunion, and the church's responsibility, and the great occasion, the climax of twenty years of negotiations, had passed into history.

More than one hundred representatives brought their greetings to the reunited church at the evening meeting, when a number of short addresses were given, Dr. Hooper C. Pidgeon speaking for the United Church of Canada, and Dr. Parrie, the moderator, for the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The speech of the evening was that of Dr. Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, himself a son of the manse and of a former moderator of the Church of Scotland. Dr. Lang voiced the wish that the Scottish Episcopal Church might be brought into the uniting stream.

On the previous day the dissentients from the United Free Church met in Glasgow. Amicable arrangements had been made under which the United Free Church should give £35,000 in quit claim to the minority, which will carry on as the United Free Church of Scotland (Continuing). Mr. Rosslyn Mitchell, former member of the British House of Commons, and who visited Victoria with the Interparliamentary Union, was praised for his share in the financial success. Rev. John Barr, M.P., was chosen as moderator. The strength of the continuing church is not yet manifest, but only twenty-two in a meeting of those declared themselves opposed at the final union.

Scottish Union Was Phenomenon

REFERRING to the formal act of union between the two great Scottish churches of which some mention is made on this page a correspondent writes that it was the most colorful ecclesiastical celebration he had ever witnessed. "Nowhere else in Scotland could such a thing have happened in quite the same way."

"It required," he goes on to say, "the background of 350 years of unique history, the atmosphere of Edinburgh and the temperament of the Scottish people to produce such a remarkable phenomenon. There was a wonderful exhibition of display—and reverence; of strength, almost regardless—and tender emotions; of strong intellectualism—and New Testament evangelism."

MINISTER TO PURSUE TOPIC OF OPTIMISM

Rev. H. P. Luttrell Will Give Consolatory Message at St. Andrew's Evening Service Today

FITTING MUSIC TO BE RENDERED

The minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. H. P. B. Luttrell, B.A., will take as his theme this morning, "The Optimism of Jesus," following what he said last Sunday morning on "The Optimism of the Hebrew Prophets." The optimism of Jesus will be seen exhibited in his idea of the Kingdom, its growth and establishment. In the evening, the subject will be "Alone, Yet Not Alone," John 16-32, a message for the lonely regarding man's social instinct from which arises a thirst for companionship.

The music for the morning service will be Wadely's anthem, "O God of Wisdom," and the soloist will be Mrs Reid, who will sing "Cast Thy Burden," by Hamblen. In the evening the choir will sing Christopher Mark's anthem, "More Love to Thee," the solos being taken by Miss Isobel Crawford and Mrs. Hawes. # DR. DAVIES TO BLAME PRESS AND PULPIT

City Temple Pastor to Give Seventh Sermon in Series on World Peace — Mrs. Johns Is Evening Soloist

SERMON OF OCT. 20 TO BE GIVEN OUT

Trenchant criticism of pulpit and press for their perfidy to the peoples of the world during the several decades prior to the war of 1914, will form the basis of the seventh sermon in a series on "World Peace" being delivered at the Victoria City Temple on Sunday evenings. Dr. Clem Davies' theme will be "The Prevar Surrender of Press and Pulpit to Armor-clad Capitalism." The Temple pastor's premise will be that Christianity, as an institution, made a wholesale surrender to the predatory vested interests in the years preceding the struggle on the battlefields of Europe. A way will be pointed out in which the press and pulpit can avoid the pitfalls of the last generation and champion the common people's cause of world friendship throughout the earth.

Dr Davies, at the morning service, will show how a vigorous programme of activity may engage the life of the church in this generation, under the topic, "If Jesus Were in Our Pulpits Today?" The Temple choir will sing Jackson's "Te Deum" at the morning service, and at night the anthem, "He is Watching Over Israel," will be sung, and Mrs. (Dr.) Harry Johns will render a solo by Liddle entitled "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

As a preliminary, write for our pamphlet entitled "If You Were Totally Disabled."

Address:

JACK was earning $75 a week. They had a fine apartment, lots of friends. Life was one continuous party. Then Jack took sick. First an appendix; then, as he was getting over that, "flu" set in and pneumonia developed. Jack was laid up for 15 weeks. Of course, he hadn't a penny saved, so his friends and his wife's parents had to come to their financial assistance.

But that wasn't all. If Jack had died he would have had to be buried at somebody else's expense. Why? Because he and his wife were both living for today and spent every penny that he earned.

His illness taught him a lesson. He now owns $20,000 of Confederation Life Insurance. It only costs him $12.50 a week—but it insures a life competence to Mary.

DEAN TO SPEAK AGAIN ON JEW

Contemporaneous Questions in Jewish Life to Be Discussed Monday Evening

"What the Jew Has Given to Human Life," is the subject of a public lecture to be delivered in the Colonial Memorial Hall tomorrow evening by the Dean of Columbia, the Very Rev. C. S. Quainton. This lecture, which is a sequel to that given some months ago under the title, "The Wandering Jew," will deal with the problem of Zionism, the recent massacres in Palestine, and with the contribution the Jew has made to science, literature, music, law, learning and religion.

Admission is free to all, and the lecture will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. A collection will be received for the funds of the Cathedral Men's Guild, under whose auspices the lecture will be delivered.

BASING SERMON ON BIOGRAPHY

Rev. H. Knox's Evening Subject at Emmanuel Deals With Essentials of Prosperity

Basing his message on the biography of a man noted for his virility, fearlessness, aggressiveness and faith, Rev. Henry Knox will preach on "Essentials to Prosperity" at the evening service at Emmanuel Baptist Church. At the service the choir will sing the anthems "O Taste and See" (Goss) and "The Day Is Past and Over" (Marks). At the morning hour of worship the subject of the sermon will be "Life in Christ." The anthem "Blessed Be the God and Father" (Wesley) will be rendered by the choir.

OAK BAY UNITED TO BEGIN MONTHLY MUSICALES TODAY

Dr. Howard will occupy the pulpit of Oak Bay United Church at the morning service and will discuss the character of the "Elder Brother." Rev. W. A. Guy goes to Wilkinson Road.

The monthly musical series will be resumed for the Autumn and Winter season. In addition to general congregational singing the choir will render at the evening hour. Anthem, "Hark, Hark, My Soul" (Shelley); solo, "The Voice in the Wilderness," Mrs. O. E. McNeill; duet, Messrs. Brown and Hubert Irvings. In the field of hymn writers, the work of James Montgomery will be briefly sketched by the minister.

BURNING LAMP OF INDIA IS THEME OF REV. H. NIXON

The pastor of Fairfield United Church, Rev. Hugh Nixon, expresses gratitude with the inspirational addresses on Tuesday of Rev. Dr. Guinn and Rev. J. W. Neiman. He will preach in the morning on "India's Burning Lamp," and in the evening on "The growing vision of Jesus."

The special music for the day will be a baritone solo by Maurice M. Moss in the morning and a soprano solo by Miss Grace Plain in the evening, with choir anthems at both services.

MRS. GRANT CLOSES LECTURE SERIES ON ANSWER TO PRAYER

The Unity Centre will hold its usual service at 11 o'clock today when Mrs. Gordon Grant will speak on "The Key to God's Abundance." This will be the last of the series of lectures on "God's Answer to Prayer." A sermonette will be given to the children on "The Messages Sent by God." In the evening, at 7:30, the subject for discussion will be "Who Are God's Children?"

On Tuesday, at 2.45 o'clock, there will be the rest and healing hour; the subject for study will be "Your Resource." On Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, the members of the correspondence school will meet; questions for beginners will be studied. Anyone interested in any of these services will be welcomed.

Attendance Is Growing at St. Saviour's School

The following services will be held in St. Saviour's Church today. A celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock, Matins at 11, and Evensong at 7 o'clock. The rector, Rev. Edwin Moon, will preach throughout the day. Any newcomers to the district will be especially welcomed to the services. The Sunday school will be held as usual at 10 o'clock. The number of scholars in attendance is steadily increasing.

Logic of Cynicism Is Evening Theme Knox Presbyterian

The pastor, Rev. T. Haven Davies, M.A., will conduct both services today at Knox Presbyterian Church, corner of Gladstone and Stanley Avenue. "The Rock That Is Higher" (Psalms lxi. 3) will be the topic of the morning at 11 o'clock and "the subject of the address at 7:30 will be "The Logic of Cynicism" (Luke xii. 19). The Sunday school will meet at 2.45 o'clock.

"What is the plural of man, Tommy?" asked the teacher of a small pupil.

"Men," answered Tommy.

"Correct," said the teacher, "and what is the plural of child."

"Twins," was the logical but unexpected reply.

MRS. DAVIS TO SPEAK ON "HELL FIRE A BOGIE"

"The Truth in All Religions" will be the topic at the New Thought Temple, 730a Fort Street, for the morning service. Among the questions discussed will be: Does any one religion contain all the truth? Can all truth be comprehended by man? The subject for the evening talk will be "Hell Fire a Bogie."

On Wednesday evening Mrs. Davis will lecture on "Inspiration: What It Means to the World and How to Attain It."

"You'll drive me out of my mind!" said the golfer's wife angrily.

"That would be a putt, my dear—hardly a drive."

Mme. Sherry's Topic Is Divine Healing

"Divine Healing" will be the subject taken by Mme. Sherry at the Sons of England Hall, 1216 Broad Street, 7.30 o'clock. Demonstrations in healing at the close of the service.

A great philosopher has said, "The most utterly lost of all days is that in which you have not laughed."

A woman once went to an eminent divine, and complained of the bad conduct of her husband, who, she said, was an utterly worthless fellow. The minister listened patiently to her tale of woe, and when she had finished asked her, "Have you ever tried heaping coals of fire upon his head?" "No," replied the woman, "but I've tried 'ot water!"

They were living in a Fool's Paradise

If you are married and are earning $75 a week, or more, you should own at least $20,000 of life insurance. If you are not carrying this amount, let us assist you to get it.

As a preliminary, write for our pamphlet entitled "If You Were Totally Disabled."

Address:

JACK was earning $75 a week. They had a fine apartment, lots of friends. Life was one continuous party. Then Jack took sick. First an appendix; then, as he was getting over that, "flu" set in and pneumonia developed. Jack was laid up for 15 weeks. Of course, he hadn't a penny saved, so his friends and his wife's parents had to come to their financial assistance.

But that wasn't all. If Jack had died he would have had to be buried at somebody else's expense. Why? Because he and his wife were both living for today and spent every penny that he earned.

His illness taught him a lesson. He now owns $20,000 of Confederation Life Insurance. It only costs him $12.50 a week—but it insures a life competence to Mary.

New Things for Your Garden From Abroad

From Holland and Japan there will shortly arrive at our nursery large shipments of shrubs and trees which, in many instances, will be new to gardens in this country. Particularly interesting are a group of dwarf evergreen shrubs. All were personally selected for us by the nurseries of Holland during the last Summer, and we believe that nothing superior has ever been imported into Canada. These things, as well as our Perennials, Roses, Rock and Alpine Plants, will interest you this Fall.

TO REPLACE CITADEL BY NEW BLOCK

Salvation Army Launches Drives for New Headquarters, With Appeal Based on Civic Service

SERVICE RECORD OF 42 YEARS

For forty-two years the lads and lassies of the Salvation Army have been a familiar sight upon the streets and byways of Victoria. Playing in the band, tending a little child by the hand, carrying a basket of groceries to some neighbor in the middle of the night, their neat red and blue uniforms, their erect carriage, their frank and friendly countenance, have been constantly in evidence.

For forty-two years these brothers and sisters of mercy, with almost inadequate personal recompense and often working under the greatest difficulties through their labors of love and faith, have freely given service worth thousands of dollars to Victoria. By their labors society has been protected and erring footsteps turned into the right way.

For the past twenty-five years the Citadel on Broad Street has been the centre of all Salvation Army activities. This property, for many years, has been unsuitable and inadequate for the extensive operations carried on. The quality of the work has been of the highest, but the efficiency has been retarded by the lack of proper facilities, and so a property has been recently acquired on Cormorant Street, where the new Citadel will be situated. A drive for funds for this purpose will shortly be launched, and it is anticipated that the citizens of Victoria and Vancouver Island will give generously to this worthy venture.

The Citadel will provide a spacious auditorium for the spiritual work of the organization, with capacity to seat 800 people and a gallery to accommodate another 300 for special events. The junior hall will have accommodation for Bible classes, and tray classes and library. In addition there will be special clubrooms for the Life-Saving Scouts, Guards, Chums and Sunbeams, where first aid scout and guard craft and social activities among the boys and girls will be carried on. Besides rooms for band and songsters, accommodation will be made for a boys' band. Special facilities will be made for the Home League, a branch of the work established to assist women with spiritual counsel and direction in domestic affairs.

The office of the Victoria Citadel Corps will also be located here and this will offer to the citizens of Victoria connection with all branches of Salvation Army service, including rescue homes, hospital visitation, general relief work, police court work, maternity hospitals, women's shelters, children's homes, lost and missing friends inquiry department, anti-suicide and drunkards' reclamation, immigration and all other branches.

Indicative of the range and amount of the Army's service the following figures are taken from the report for the year ending September 30:

Men started afresh, 97; free meals given, 3,727; free beds given, 3,761; temporary situations found, 538; prisoners interviewed, 121; total value relief, $1,828.18; number provided with work, 104; sick visitation, 350; persons visited, 10,400. Christmas hampers supplied, 190; families helped with clothing, 45.
